U. S. INTEREST RATES LIKELY TO BE REVISED

High Grade Bonds and Mortgages Made Attractive for Investors

BANKS WILL BENEFIT

Federal Reserve Action Also Expected to Have Influence Abroad

Washington—(CPA)—Money which has been seeking safe investment at the highest yield is literally going to be forced into the purchase of high grade bonds and good mortgages—the thing most needed to stimulate the construction industry and bring about the refinancing of many industrial corporations.

This is the significance of the latest move of the Federal Reserve system in bringing down the rediscount rate in New York to the lowest level ever established by any central banking system, namely, 1 1/2 percent. A general revision of interest rates now is expected, ranging from government securities to mortgage loans.

What the Federal Reserve system does in New York will undoubtedly be followed gradually by the other federal reserve districts in an effort to rearrange the entire structure of interest rates in America. The rediscount rate and the rate on bankers' acceptances have in recent years influenced the rates paid by banks on current balances and demand deposits as well as the general cost of money to the borrower.

Easier for Banks

Many banks with idle funds have been investing in government securities but at the same time have been paying interest on deposits, which has made it impossible for these banks to develop their own earnings. Plans are under way in New York for action by the clearing house banks to reduce or entirely eliminate interest on demand deposits. It is not expected that the new rediscount rate will influence member banks to borrow much more than they have in the past but it will bring the rediscount rate into line with open market conditions for money, causing the funds in New York to produce easy money in other centers of the country. Also it is expected to have a considerable effect abroad in stopping the flow of

RECAPTURE CONVICTED ROBBER IN NEBRASKA

Hastings, Neb.—(P)—James Thomas, convicted bank robber, who escaped from the county jail here early today has been apprehended. Officers found him hiding in the county treasurer's office.

Thomas, Sheriff Ray Crosson said, was to have been arraigned today for sentence. Charges of shooting with intent to kill and kidnapping are still pending against the fugitive.

Describing the escape, Crosson said Thomas saved his way to freedom from a solitary confinement cell.

A plate holding two steel bars to the door of the cell, he said, was sawed off permitting the prisoner to gain access to a corridor from which he easily reached the first floor of the courthouse. The turn of an inside door lock was then all that remained for Thomas to reach the outside. The jail quarters are housed in the sub-basement of the courthouse.

KING CAROL

Bucharest, Rumania—(P)—

The police were reported today to have uncovered a plot to assassinate King Carol tomorrow on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the enthronement of Carol I.

Although the police issued an unqualified denial, the report was to the effect that authorities had arrested an individual who lay concealed under the stands, from which King Carol and the royal family planned to watch the military parade. He was reported to have been armed with a loaded revolver.

Heavy Load Keeps DO-X From Flight

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil—(P)—The National Telegraph today announced receipt of a message from the German seaplane DO-X that she had tried to take off near Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, at 4 o'clock a. m. but was unable to get away because of her heavy load. She was taken to Orango island where she will attempt to start later today.

Hamburg—(P)—Meteorologists at the government station are mystified by reports from London and elsewhere that the seaplane DO-X had started her transatlantic flight from Africa for South America.

The station has been supplying weather data to Commander Christensen by shortwave wireless for the past few days and was in communication with him last night, but he said nothing about an immediate start.

There is a possibility that the DO-X may have made a short trial flight in the vicinity of Bolama without bothering to mention it, but if the start for Brazil had been made the weather observers are certain they should have been informed immediately.

WILL LEAVE FOR BRAZIL

Philadelphia—(P)—Lieut. Clarence H. Schildbauer, copilot of the DO-X was preparing at his home here today to start for Natal, Brazil, where he intends joining the flying boat. Schildbauer said he will aid in bringing the seaplane to this country and will fly over established airways.

BELOIT PRESIDENT ENDS CAMPUS FLAREUP

Beloit—(P)—Peace prevailed again today on the Beloit college campus after Dr. Irving Maurer, president, read before an assembled student body a statement regarding visiting regulations between Beloit co-eds and male students at fraternity and sorority houses.

Resentment which threatened to flare into mass action subsided when President Maurer explained a new ruling forbidding students to visit without chaperonage at fraternity and sorority houses was a proper administrative regulation against which protests will be heard but against which a group ultimatum will be futile.

3 Drown As Cars Plunge Into River

2 BODIES FOUND, THIRD MISSING AFTER TRAGEDY

Machines Fall Through Open Span Into Fox River at Green Bay

Green Bay—(P)—Three persons were drowned here early today when two automobiles plunged through an open draw span of the downtown Walnut-st bridge and sank in the Fox river.

The dead are: Clark Conaty, 38, Green Bay salesman and boxing commissioner. Fred Ruseh, 21, Seymour, Wis. Evelyn Murphy, 21, Green Bay waitress.

Otto Tonne, 50, a boxing referee, originally believed drowned with the others, was found about 7 o'clock a. m. at his cottage near Bay Beach. He said he left Conaty shortly before the accident.

Three dragging crews, assisted by Clarke Cormier, professional diver, had recovered the bodies of Conaty and Miss Murphy but Ruseh's body still was missing. Relatives of Ruseh were convinced he drowned since, they said, he called for Miss Murphy at a restaurant after taking his sister home from a dance.

Henry Demessen, bridge tender said the barrier was in proper position, and that Conaty's car crashed through it.

Demessen and members of a police squad witnessed the accident. They said the first automobile a roadster believed driven by Ruseh, crashed through the barrier, and dropped into 25 feet of water about 20 feet from the edge of the pavement. A sedan driven by Conaty followed the first machine so closely it was unable to stop. It also plunged through the open draw.

The bridge tender and police officer fled the scene of the accident at 1 o'clock a. m. Cables were attached to the machines by the diver and Conaty's body was soon removed from his automobile. Miss Murphy's body was recovered from an automobile which contained an identification card issued to Ruseh. The glass of doors and windshields of both machines was smashed.

Firemen and police were unable to hoist the two automobiles from the stream with wreckers. A heavy derrick was obtained and the wrecked automobiles were drawn to the shore.

THREE MEN CONVICTED UNDER BLUE SKY LAW

Green Bay—(P)—Three men involved in activities of the defunct Skidmore Land Credit company last night were convicted by a circuit court jury of charges of violating the blue sky law by renewing $33,000 worth of bonds without a permit.

The men, Ben and Ralph Skidmore, officers of the company, and Fred C. Burke, former Marinette bank cashier, said they handled the renewals but contended since the bonds were sold before the blue sky law was passed, renewals did not require a permit. Judge Henry Graess said the question would be certified for review by the state supreme court.

Burke and Ralph Skidmore also were found guilty of selling bonds for cash without a permit. The men were all freed under their own continued bond of $10,000 each pending conclusion of the case.

Crowley Balks At Delay As He Faces Death Chair

"Get It Over With, Quick," Killer Urges New York Authorities

New York—(P)—Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley, held for killing Policeman Frederick Hirsch last Monday, asked authorities today to "get it over with, quick."

"What's the use of foolin' around with a trial, and all that bunk?" he asked, petulantly, from his hospital cot where he is recovering from bullet wounds suffered in the siege and fight that resulted in his capture Thursday. "I'm going to burn, it might as well be right away."

Just as one girl's tip was responsible for his arrest, the testimony of another is counted upon by the state to be the strongest link in his prosecution.

A blonde dancer, Billie Dunne, in whose W. 90th-st apartment Crowley and Rudolph "Fat" Durlinger were captured, was responsible for her former sweetheart's arrest, police said. Crowley telephoned her at the apartment "to get out and make room for a regular girl." Police got the information from the dance hall where the Dunne girl works as a hostess.

Crowley's comment to his guards as he was being taken to jail was: "You ought to give a badge to Billie Dunne. She's a cop now."

Helen Walsh, 16, who was with him in the bullet and gas splattered building when 200 police surrounded it Thursday, will be the main witness at his trial for the murder of Frederick Hirsch, Nassau co policeman. Miss Walsh was in an automobile with Crowley when Hirsch was shot.

The Walsh girl is being held as a witness. She was the star witness in the grand jury chambers yesterday when a murder indictment was returned against Crowley.

She revealed that Crowley forced her to write notes during the police siege. Most of the notes told of her love for Crowley. District Attorney Edwards of Nassau co said the girl had expressed fear and hate of Crowley since her arrest.

Durlinger, taken to the Bronx, was indicted for the murder of Virginia Brannen, Bangor, Me., girl who worked here as a dance hall hostess.

Police say Crowley and Durlinger took the girl for an automobile ride, but Durlinger confessed that he alone killed her with Crowley's revolver. Jealousy was his motive.

Detectives are checking the story of Salvatore Russo, a witness, now in custody, that Durlinger killed Miss Brannen for $300, paid him by another man.

DIAMOND REFUSED LIBERTY ON BAIL

Wounded New York Gangster Charged With Illegal Possession of Arms

Albany, N. Y.—(P)—Supreme Court Justice Brewster today denied the application for bail for Jack (Legs) Diamond, charged with illegal possession of firearms.

The application for bail was heard yesterday at Schenectady. Justice Brewster's decision was made known in communication sent to Diamond's attorney, Daniel E. Flier of Albany, and to Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., in charge of the state's investigation.

Diamond was at liberty under bail totaling $40,000 when ambushed at the Aratoga Inn in the Catskills nearly two weeks ago. There was an old narcotics charge against him, in connection with which he had been free under a $15,000 bond. Just before the shooting at the Aratoga he had been released in $25,000 bail in the Grover Parks torture case.

Parks was kidnapped in the Catskills when he refused to answer questions about a load of cider on his truck. He blamed Diamond and his gang. The firearms charge was read to Diamond while he lay in the Albany hospital, recovering from bullet wounds suffered in the Aratoga episode.

G. O. P. LEADERS WATCH LONDON WHEAT PARLEY

Hopeful It Will Offer Solution to Pressing Problem in America

Washington—(P)—Republican party leaders have cast expectant glances London-ward in the hope that the forthcoming international wheat conference may offer some solution to a pressing economic and political problem in this country.

Two things might conceivably result: 1—An avenue for future disposal of the enormous wheat stocks owned by the Grain Stabilization corporation, a farm board agency, and 2—Some means of bolstering the depressed price of the commodity.

Should one or both develop from the conference of leading exporting nations, no one would be more pleased than members of the Republican agricultural advisory council formed to "sell" the tariff and the farm board in the middle west.

Representation at the London meeting was urged upon President Hoover by Senator McNary of Oregon, the assistant party leader and chairman of the senate agriculture committee.

McNary has paid several calls at the farm board to discuss methods of controlling the 1931 surplus, and has suggested plans to this end.

It has been stressed that if nothing else is accomplished, the international parley will demonstrate the necessity for United States farmers to reduce acreage to bring about a better domestic price.

Less Hanting

The board in announcing that Samuel R. McKelvey would be its delegate at London, made it clear that in its opinion farmers must cut their plantings to improve the price. As a consequence of its campaign, a 14 per cent reduction in spring wheat land has been forecast. At 20 to 25 per cent curtailment in winter wheat sown next fall is hoped for.

If those reductions materialize, economists say the 1932 price will rise to a point considerably above present levels. That would take place about the time of the national elections.

Should the international conference conclude with no tangible results, it is likely that particular attention will be paid to the stabilization of wheat stocks with regard to its immediate disposal. This stabilization corporation now is selling 35,000,000 bushels abroad. No plans have been made for other sales at this time.

Some quarters believe the board will be prevailed upon not to authorize sales in large volume on the domestic market until next year when it is hoped that better market conditions will obtain.

The Republican agricultural advisory council, in telling farmers of the farm board's accomplishments, probably will devote much time to cooperative marketing. When stabilization operations are discussed, it is believed a promise that the wheat stocks will be held for another year will be of considerable value.

TAKE DISCIPLINARY POWERS FROM DEANS

Madison—(P)—The offices of Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men, at the University of Wisconsin, and Miss Louise Nardin, dean of women, have been shorn of disciplinary powers.

Faculty action approved the change after several months of divided opinion between students and faculty members as to the functions of the offices of dean of men and dean of women.

A minority report of a student committee appointed by the faculty to determine student attitudes yesterday said deans were prone to make investigations under false assumption the student was guilty, failing to take into account individual situations and personalities with result of recent and defiance of the part of the student. The report recommended the offices become headquarters for "student counselors."

ELDER STICKL DIES AT STATE HOSPITAL

Green Bay—(P)—John Stickl, Sr., 47, adjudged insane and committed to the Northern State hospital at Oshkosh last week, died at the institution last night. It was learned here today.

ARISTIDE BRIAND

Way Open To Presidency For Briand

Paris—(P)—Aristide Briand, whose foreign policies were vindicated by a smashing vote in the chamber of deputies yesterday, today declined to be stamped into declaring himself a candidate for presidency of the republic.

Shortly after noon he received a delegation from the chamber which asked that he make a formal declaration of his candidacy, but he declined for the time being to make any statement of his position.

Paris—(P)—The way to the French presidency was open today for Aristide Briand, veteran foreign minister, if he decided finally that he wants that office of much dignity and little power.

By a vote of 450 to 32 the chamber of deputies last night recorded emphatic approval of his foreign office policies after a fiery debate in which a few of M. Briand's enemies made a determined but futile stand in opposition to him.

It was as convincing a testimonial of popularity as any French statesman has had in many years, and in the chamber lobbies there remained little doubt that the man to whom it was voted may have the highest office of the French republic in succession to Gaston Doumergue if he wishes.

The left groups of the chamber announced today to send a delegation to M. Briand to request him to announce his candidacy for the presidency, to which someone will be named by the national assembly May 13. The only other candidate who has put his foot forward to the president of the senate, Paul Doumer, who probably will be elected if M. Briand turns down his opportunity through a preference to continue in the foreign office.

The vote of confidence sends M. Briand to the forthcoming meeting of the council of the League of nations at Geneva with a full endorsement of his efforts to effect international treaties which he claimed in debate yesterday had made more difficult than at any time in history. It was an endorsement also of the foreign office portfolio if M. Briand elects to stand for the presidency.

NEW SPANISH ENVOY IS APPROVED BY HOOVER

Washington—(P)—President Hoover has accepted Salvador M. Darlaaga as ambassador of the Spanish republic to the United States.

Announcing the decision today, Secretary Stimson said the name had been submitted by the Madrid government prior to the making of the appointment, as is customary. The new ambassador probably will be appointed shortly.

His successor, Francisco y Bell, a monarchist, who resigned his post upon the abdication of King Alfonso.

TOTAL IN LOOT AND RANSOM SET AT SIX MILLION

Federal, Illinois and County Officers Cooperate in Raid

LINKED WITH GANGS

Suspects Believed Involved in Badger Holdups—Wanted in Nebraska

Chicago—(P)—A fight for the custody of the six alleged kidnapers and robbers captured at East St. Louis last night began today with representatives of Lincoln, Neb., authorities pressing their claim on the men as suspects in a $2,500,000 bank robbery.

Chicago police and representatives of the Illinois Bankers association left for Sterling, Ill., with the announcement that they intended to meet the motor cavalcade there and serve the prisoners with fugitive warrants charging them with participation in the sensational Lincoln robbery.

Emory Smith, Chicago attorney and representative of State's Attorney Max Towle of Lincoln, verified the fact that fugitive warrants were out for the men and that the prisoners seized at East St. Louis and held overnight at Springfield were the men wanted in Lincoln.

Smith said he understood the men, whose names were given as Tommy Hayes, Thomas O'Connor, Jack Britt, Howard Lee, E. Hawks and William McQuillan, were wanted as suspects in many other crimes but that he hoped to have them held for the Lincoln robbery because of the enormity of the loot.

Lincoln Bank Robbery

"It was the largest bank robbery ever perpetrated in the United States," Smith said. "They got $2,500,000." Previous estimates had been nearer $1,000,000.

The suspects, their captors and another group of police officers planned to meet in Sterling, this afternoon.

The group including bankers association representatives left Chicago at 9:30 a. m. (C. S. T.) in seven automobiles bearing the six gangsters headed north from Springfield at 9:15.

Chicago—(P)—The authorities have struck at gangland again—this time to capture, they claimed, a gang of six kidnapers and bank robbers whose loot and ransom money ran into the millions, including $200,000 taken in the Denver mint holdup of 1925. Their proceeds were estimated by their accusers at $500,000, of which $1,000,000 was used as ransom money, in kidnappings.

The six were caught in a spectacular raid on what officers described as a "gangster flat" in downtown East St. Louis, Ill., late yesterday, as the result of the combined efforts to federal, state, and local authorities. An hour later they were started, under heavy guard, in nine automobiles, toward Chicago. They paused overnight at Springfield.

Said by police to be remnants of the Cuckoo and Buckton gangs of southern Illinois and to have been affiliated with the "mob" of Fred Burke, notorious killer, the six were accused of participation in more than 60 bank robberies in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Nebraska, including the Lincoln, (Neb.) National bank robbery on Sept. 17, 1930.

In addition to these crimes the officers attributed to the gang the slaying of Mrs. Cora Garrison, wife of Clyde Garrison, Peoria, Ill., gambler killed Oct. 17, 1930; the killing of Thomas J. Roemer, Chicago labor leader, March 19, 1931; and the kidnapping of Fred J. Blumer, Monroeville, Wis., near-beer brewer, and James Hackett, Blue Island, Ill., lumber, who said he paid $150,000 or his entire fortune for his release.

Chicago police got their first intimation of the activities of the gang when Detective Sergeant Boy Stefens and Charles Touzinsky, were working for solution of a gang killing in suburban Cicero, Ill. They went to East St. Louis and helped make the arrests.

Telephone calls, overheard by investigators, made between members of the gang in East St. Louis and Chicago, calling the "branches" together for a "board meeting" was said by police to have been the immediate cause of the arrests. Ten men were taken in all, but later four of them were released.

Precautions, similar to those taken when Fred Burke was taken from Missouri to Michigan to answer for the slaying of a St. Joseph, Mich., policeman, were arranged by the officers for the overland journey of the six captives toward Chicago.

The autocrats travelled swiftly and quietly from East St. Louis to Springfield arrived at the capital about 11:30 P. M. The prisoners, handcuffed to one another, were seated in the front seats, next to the driver of the automobile. In the rear seat were two police officers with machine guns.

World Chamber Of Commerce Head Asks Closer Trade Links

NEED REVEALED BY DEPRESSION, HE POINTS OUT

Business Pays More Heed to Needs of Mankind Than State, Claim

Washington—(AP)—Closer economic relations between the nations of the world were called for today in a radio address from Berlin by Franz von Mendelssohn, new president of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Greeting the convention here in its closing hours, the Berlin banker and grandson of the famous composer, said:

"The economic independence of the world is more strongly expressed in the universality of the world economic crisis than in the exchange of our wares, the movements of our ships, the means used for disseminating news, without which our congress would be inconceivable, more strongly than that the picture presented by the highly developed technical economic system.

"We must do everything to prevent this world economic crisis from becoming a crisis in the sensible international economic convictions of mankind.

"We believe that business men, answerable with their persons and fortunes, conduct business more in accord with the needs of mankind than is done by the state, whether its will be determined by a majority or a minority."

The speaker referred to 20,000,000 unemployed in the world and apparently thinking of reparations, said:

"The well being of the creditor is endangered when the debtor is crushed under his burdens, and when political and economic conditions render productive work. The seller needs the purchasing power of the buyer. There is no method by which economic well being can be permanently isolated in one country."

"Locked-up capital wealth dries up," he added, "that is applied to fruitful soil will be productive both in outflow and return."

"We Europeans regard with admiration the great uniform economic area of the truly United States. Even if we cannot follow this example, much can yet be done and economic barriers which have become a menace to us progressively removed."

Stand on War Debts

The International Chamber of Commerce recorded its conviction today that the war debts, while fixed by treaty, should be open to examination if changed economic conditions are found to warrant such action.

A general resolution adopted also called for intensification of efforts by the world powers for armament reductions, as urged by President Hoover; removal of all trade barriers including discriminatory tariffs; adherence to private initiative and operation of business, and a holding down of governmental expenditures.

Seconding the motion for adoption of this resolution, Willis E. Booth, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, and member of the American committee, said the American delegation had never opposed "the suggestion that any nation should not feel free to ask a re-examination of these debts on the basis of the underlying principles upon which they have been settled."

The resolution said international obligations "have been made definite in amounts and terms as between nations. The integrity of such obligations is always fundamental to the maintenance of international credit and to the expansion of commerce and industry."

"The observance of this essential principle, however, is not inconsistent with an impartial examination of the effects of these obligations on international trade, if warranted by changed economic conditions, such examination to be based on the principles laid down by the international chamber of commerce at its constitutions."

This was said to refer to the position taken by the international chamber at Rome in 1923, which some claim formed the basis for part of the original Dawes plan of reparations payments.

GANGSTERS TURN TO KIDNAPING TO GET REVENUE

Authorities Get Few Results in Investigation of Cases

BY OWEN L. SCOTT Copyright 1931, by Cons. Press

Chicago—(CPA)—Kidnaping for ransom—which long has had vogue among the bandits of Mexico and China—is reported growing by leaps and bounds in the United States as a new source of underworld revenue.

Criminal gangs, with their income curtailed as the result of diminished public thirst for bootleg products, have turned to preying on persons with money, in some sections. Outfits in St. Louis and Detroit operating in the ransom field with such lucrative results that they are being emulated.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney here, reports now that three organized gangs are in the kidnaping business around Chicago. He reports that underworld entrepreneurs, particularly with gamblers, have hired sizeable bodyguards to protect them from forays.

The latest sample of kidnaping activity here was provided by John Hackett, rich gambler of Blue Island, who was released after reputed payment of $150,000. Previously, kidnaped gamblers in this territory were supposed to have contributed at least $50,000 to the operating gangs.

In St. Louis, within the past few months, there have been 13 cases of kidnaping. In two of those cases newspapersmen brought about the release of the prisoners, while authorities have been able to produce few tangible results.

Clean-Up

Detroit was a particularly fertile ground for the blackmailers until public opinion forced something of a clean-up. Police connivance in the activity of the gangs frequently has been suspected.

Until kidnaping recently became a business of proportions, taking its place alongside bootlegging, pocket picking and bombing, as a source of underworld revenue, it was confined to isolated instances, usually involving the abduction of a child.

Most famous of kidnaping cases before the industrial era of crime, were those of Charlie Ross, five-year-old boy, stolen from his lawn in Germantown, Pennsylvania, in 1874 and never recovered, and Edward Gudahy, of the packing family, kidnaped in Omaha in 1900 and released on payment of $25,000 in gold.

In those days, a kidnaping aroused the country. So shocked were people by this form of crime that many states, including Illinois, provided the death penalty for its perpetrators.

But today million-dollar kidnaping rings are referred to as established institutions, around certain of the large cities. As yet, authorities have been notably impotent in dealing with them.

WON'T PAY $100 FOR RETURN OF $13,000 IN BONDS HE LOST

St. Paul, Minn.—(AP)—Pay $100 to recover $13,000 worth of lost bonds? No, said fifty dollars reward is enough.

So thinks F. A. Barcus of Madisonville, Ky., bond broker, who lost the negotiable securities in the washroom of a hotel here yesterday. Mr. Barcus advertised his loss and offered $50 reward.

He received two telephone calls, saying the bonds would be returned if the reward were doubled.

"I'll not pay $100," said Mr. Barcus. But he expects to hear from his mysterious telephone correspondent again, and perhaps reach a compromise.

Will Serve as Head of Chamber of Commerce Group for Second Term

A. J. Geniesse was reappointed chairman of the retail division of the chamber of commerce at the monthly meeting of the board of directors at Hotel Northern Friday noon. The industrial committee chairman, W. J. Roemer, also was reappointed.

Other members of the industrial committee are David Smith, John Neiler, E. A. Schmalz, Karl Schuetter, C. S. Boyd, W. H. Falatich, R. S. Powell, and Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

David Smith was appointed chairman of the finance committee. Other members of the committee are W. A. Strassburger, J. R. Whitman and Mr. Roemer.

The budget for 1931-32 was presented by Mr. Smith, chairman of the budget committee.

Plans for "Home Products Week" also were discussed. According to preliminary plans, the purpose of the program is to acquaint Appletonians with the kinds of products manufactured in the city. It is planned to display the products of various industrial plants in the windows of local retail business establishments.

Representatives of industrial plants and retail establishments will probably meet soon when arrangements for the display will be discussed.

Harvey Schlitz, president of the chamber, and head of the "Flower and Garden society, presented a report on the objectives and program of the society. The chamber recently adopted the society program as one of its projects. A chamber committee will make a further study of the program and will probably present recommendations at a future meeting of the board.

CONSERVATION PROGRAM GETS REAL AIRING

Northern Wisconsin Residents Score Policy of Commission

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's conservation program was given concerted attention by the legislature and citizenry of the state during a week given over to the emergency forestry situation.

It was natural that the legislature take immediate steps to relieve the area stricken by forest fires a month ago, but the state received with surprise the assembly resolution, a week later, attacking the conservation commission. When 300 northern Wisconsin residents, led by John B. Chapple, editor of the Ashland Press, arrived in the capital this week it was apparent that a showdown with the conservation department was at hand.

The March made its plea for relief with Editor Chapple in the leading role. Appearing before an assembly committee of the whole, the Ashland newspaperman charged "the small clique of commissioners of a Wisconsin five-year plan" with neglect of the forest area. He played the speaker Charles B. Perry of the lower house for the second time during the present legislative session. Perry had elected Chapple from the floor of the house for violation of lobby rules, on a previous occasion.

Chairman William Mauthe, Fond du Lac, chairman of the conservation commission, defended the department when he reminded legislators and Northerners, in attendance at an all-day hearing, that prior to March, 1930, nothing had been appropriated toward fire suppression.

The controversy was given a spectacular finish by Speaker Perry, who read into the record an interview which Assemblyman S. J. Gwilt, Rhineland, author of the resolution calling for an investigation of the conservation commission, had given to the press. Gwilt, who with Perry is a member of the investigating committee, was quoted as saying "the investigating committee's personnel will effect a 'white wash' of the commission." The committee is expected to report its findings to the assembly within the next two weeks.

Governor La Follette rebuked the legislature during the week for wasting time on legislation affecting only small groups of citizens. In his veto of the bill to restore to street railway companies the privileges of applying for intermediate permits, he said "it seems an imposition upon the people and the taxpayers of this state to take up the time of the legislature and other departments of the state with such legislation."

The governor signed the Loomis oleomargarine bill, imposing drastic fees on makers and dealers of the product. The measure affords protection of the state's butter industry.

In the senate, indefinite postponement of the Rush bill, which would have prohibited the sale of securities listed on the Boston and Chicago stock exchanges unless approved by the state railroad commission, headed the week's procession. The bill, cutting more than $42,000,544 from the tax roll through exemption of certain farm equipment from taxation, was concurred in and sent to the governor.

The assembly moved swiftly but considered no measures of major importance. A committee of the lower house heard Assemblyman Carlton Mauthe's report of the interim committee appointed by the 1929 legislature to investigate the state fire insurance laws. He said the investigation revealed that "the government of Wisconsin is a party to an uncontrolled, private price-fixing scheme."

Detroit Financier Helps Defend Station, Buckley

Detroit—(AP)—Robert Oakman, wealthy and prominent Detroit, came to the defense of Station WMEC and Gerald E. Buckley, its slain announcer, yesterday. He told representatives of the Federal Radio commission that he was a sponsor of Buckley's attacks on the underworld and said "it would be a crime" if the station should lose its license.

The financier and veteran leader in municipal politics appeared as a government witness in the hearing on alleged "irregularities" which may cost WMEC renewal of its license.

Previously, Buckley's denunciations of the underworld, had been pictured by Thomas H. Ragan, former manager of the station, as the announcer's method of forcing contributions from gamblers, night club proprietors and others.

Oakman said he talked to Buckley about the broadcast attacks on vice after the then mayor, Charles Bowles, had "violated his solemn word" and failed to close blind pigs which were selling liquor to children. He said he sent an "airplane load" of investigators to Agua Caliente, lower California, and that they discovered gamblers there would pay $15,000 a week for the privilege of operating here and "were willing to put up $1,000,000 to five men in Detroit."

Harold H. Emmens, then commissioner of police, he said, "was not in on the deal."

He said Bowles was "playing a goody-goody game with the church."

Capture "Boy Bandit" After Escape From School At Waukesha

POLICE MAKE ARREST AFTER INVESTIGATION

Hold Second Appleton Youth on Charges of Being Involved in Affair.

Raymond Pocat, 17, 812 W. Washington-st., one of Appleton's boy bandits who was sent to the Industrial school for Boys at Waukesha recently in connection with a series of car thefts here, was captured at the home of his uncle in Kimberly about 6 o'clock this morning, less than 12 hours after he had escaped from the institution.

Pocat with three of his associates escaped from Waukesha about 5:30 last night in a car with the license number E-20078. It was learned that this car, a new Buick sedan, was stolen early Thursday evening at Menasha. Following the arrest of Pocat this morning police made an investigation and arrested Lawrence Mader, 17, who lives at the corner of Franklin and Story-sts., on suspicion of having stolen the Menasha car. Mader was turned over to Menasha police and was being held Saturday by Police Chief James Lyman for investigation. The chief said Mader probably would be charged with the theft of the car.

Both Mader and Pocat were members of a gang of Appleton boy bandits who were arrested five or six times for car thefts. Other members of this gang were George Brandt, 16, and Richard Miller, 17. Miller is in the institution at Waukesha and Brandt was placed on parole. Sheriff John Lappen said this morning that he is seeking Brandt for breaking his parole.

The three other youths, who escaped with Pocat are:

Three Others Escaped

Howard Hundertmark, 17, Clintonville; Duane Hall, 17, Kenosha; George Irving, 17, Neopit. These three are still missing.

Pocat was a member of the trio, including Miller and Brandt, which attempted to escape from the county jail here while they were being held for investigation shortly before two of the group was sent to Waukesha by the Earl V. Heilmann in juvenile court.

While no records were available as to the number of times Pocat and the others had been in court, both police and court officials said the members had been brought in from five to eight times each, always in connection with the theft of cars.

Mader was arrested here when he was caught driving a car which had been stolen at Green Bay. He was turned over to Green Bay officials for prosecution, but they decided to turn him over to Milwaukee police, who wanted him there on charges of car thefts. Milwaukee officials did not prosecute, however, when they learned Mader was a minor. Mader has stoutly denied any connection with the theft of the Menasha car since his arrest this morning.

Police here first learned the escape of Pocat about 6 o'clock this morning. About 8 o'clock this morning, Officer Gus Hershkov found the Buick car, which is owned by E. P. Dornbrook, 550 Milwaukee-st., Menasha.

Police Make Search

Chief George T. Prim was notified. He instructed a squad of officers to go to Pocat's home here and search for him. When he was not there Chief Prim started an investigation which uncovered the presence of Pocat's uncle at Kimberly, Wis., with Officers Albert Delaney and Hershkov, went to Kimberly where they met Frank V. Liebhout, village marshal. They surrounded the uncle's house and captured the youth.

Pocat was wearing a new suit and a new pair of shoes which he admitted, according to Chief Prim, he stole from a cottage near Milwaukee. He said he broke into the place, but was unable to tell definitely where it was. Pocat said the three other boys escaped with him from Waukesha had left soon after they reached Milwaukee.

Chief Prim said this morning that Pocat would be turned over to Waukesha officials.

CHAPLIN'S REFUSAL TO APPEAR ON STAGE ASTOUNDS BRITONS

London — (P) — Charlie Chaplin's telegram declining an invitation to appear at a "common" vaudeville performance on Monday, was delivered today to the manager of the theatre where the performance will be held.

It said: "Very sorry. Cannot appear. Have made it a principle never to appear on the stage since I have been associated with the screen. Will you accept a donation for your worthy cause. I hope you will have the success you deserve."

The manager said the refusal to appear was unprecedented, adding that sometimes foreign performers cancel passages home-ward to appear before the king and queen. Chaplin is still a British subject.

TREES WILL BE PLANTED NEXT WEEK BY PUPILS

Five Plots to Be Used in Setting Out Seedlings in County

Five tree plantings have been scheduled for next week for rural school children of the county by Gus Sell, county agent. A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, assisted in making arrangements and instructed teachers to cooperate in the program. This is the third year that the county has taken part in the tree planting program.

The plantings next week will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The students will set out White and Norway pine and Norway spruce seedlings which are furnished by the state forestry department.

These plantings are made to demonstrate what can be done with sandy ridges and other waste land, according to Mr. Sell. Parents as well as pupils are invited to attend the plantings. Each school has been requested to bring along several spades, shovels and hoes, and a pall for carrying the seedlings in water. Following is the schedule of plantings:

Monday, 2 p. m., at the Frank Rehfeld farm, three and a half miles north of Appleton on Highway 47. Schools from the towns of Grand Chute, Center, Buchanan and Vandenberg are invited to this planting.

Tuesday, 10 a. m., on the Burns plot, one mile southwest of Stephensville, on County Trunk M. Schools from the town of Ellington, Greenville and south Bovina invited.

U. S. DEPORTS MAN FROM MILWAUKEE TO CANADA

Milwaukee — (P) — Federal immigration agents — (P) — Rene Joseph LeBroek, 22, to Montreal, Canada, from this city today with the partying advice that his love for this country is not commensurate with his love for mischief, E. P. Reynolds, Wisconsin immigration inspector, announced.

LeBroek was arrested here four months ago on charges of operating a confidence game and issuing worthless checks. He was deported at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1926. Reynolds said, but came into the United States the following month on a ruse. Reynolds described LeBroek as a young Lothario, married three times.

Instructions were received at the immigration offices that Nicholas Ranieri, Hurley, was to be included in the next deportation party leaving here for New York about the end of the month. Ranieri has been ordered to surrender May 22. He is free on bond of $1,000 following failure of an appeal.

GIRL SCOUTS PLAN TO DO MOTHERS' DUTIES

New York — (P) — Mother will have a day off tomorrow. She will be free from all household responsibilities and will be merely an honor guest in her home. Her daughter, if she's a Girl Scout, will take over the job as part of the organization's nation-wide program to celebrate Mother's day.

A quarter of a million Girl Scouts are preparing to have breakfast ready when mother arises in the morning. They will surprise mother also with a gift of their own making, or flowers of their own growing. Then they will take care of all the junior members of the family, do all the chores and cook a dinner specially chosen for the occasion.

Defends Conservation Body For Forestry Activities

Madison — (P) — The state conservation commission has given the federal government 100 per cent cooperation in the prevention and suppression of forest fires. A. G. Hammill, federal regional forest supervisor, Milwaukee, yesterday informed the assembly, committee investigating the commission.

On questions by Assemblymen Charles Perry, Wauwatosa; S. J. Gwidt, Rhinelander; Joseph Huber, West Bend, and Moulton Goff, Sturgeon Bay, all members of the committee, Mr. Hammill said the lack of funds prevented more effective work by the commission.

The budget for the fiscal year ending June 31, 1931, had an appropriation of $135,000 for fire protection while $390,000 was needed annually for adequate prevention alone, he said. He advocated the construction of fire substations and the purchase of more tractors, plows, trucks, pumps, hose and other fire fighting equipment.

Haskell Noyes, Milwaukee, a member of the conservation commission, asked if there had been any extravagance in forest fire work. Mr. Hammill replied that money could be saved in fire prevention work by giving the men better training. He said the lookout towers in Minnesota and Michigan were of a higher standard than in Wisconsin and that those states had more full time men in the field.

Mr. Hammill said that Minnesota and Michigan were also troubled with incendiary fires but that Wisconsin did not have the law enforcement record that those states have. Prosecution of settlers who cause forest fires by burning brush without permits and smokers who set fires was urged by Mr. Hammill.

C. L. Harrington, superintendent of forests and parks, also told the committee that lack of appropriations by the legislature retarded the commission's work. Even during the dangerous dry seasons the commission has not sufficient funds to adequately patrol the districts, he said. He urged an appropriation of $415,000 for fire suppression.

Assemblyman Gwidt, a former conservation ranger, was the author of the resolution which resulted in the investigation.

WOMEN'S CLUBS ASK FOR MATERNITY CARE

Women's clubs throughout the country are joining in an appeal on Mother's day to obtain adequate maternity care for mothers in the United States, according to a letter received by Mrs. John S. Stone, president of the Maternity Center association, from Sallie Orr Dunbar, chairman of the department of public welfare of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Within eight years the maternity association has dealt with 5,000 mothers. Among those under its care the death rate was reduced to one-third of that prevailing among mothers in the same section not receiving such care.

WOULD KEEP CITIES FROM DAYLIGHT SAVING

Madison — (P) — The assembly state affairs committee yesterday recommended passage of the Hemple bill forbidding establishment of daylight saving time by any Wisconsin city or business concern. The bill was inspired as a result of confusion in Milwaukee last summer when many concerns established daylight savings time while the rest of the city went by standard time.

BUTLER FACES REAL BATTLE ON OREGON JOB

Former Militarist Will Organize State Police System

BY RICHARD M. RUMMEL

Copyright 1931, by Cons. Press

Portland, Ore. — (P) — If General Smedley D. Butler really relishes storm and the smoke of battle, he may find himself right in his element when he comes here next week to organize a state police force for Oregon.

Of course, the general may find things smooth enough, so far as he is concerned, but he will be in a setting such as Oregon seldom if ever before has known. A spectacular series of events have placed state government control in the hands of Governor Julius L. Meier, who fostered the police bill and who called General Butler to the job. And now a battle over the state police bill is fomenting, even as General Butler comes to begin his work.

The drama all started more than a year ago when Governor Isaac L. Patterson was suddenly taken by death. In the subsequent campaign, George W. Joseph battled to a successful position as candidate for governor. Then, suddenly, death removed him.

Julius L. Meier, a business man, stepped into the place of Joseph, his friend. The same public which had acclaimed Joseph elected Meier, and the drama moved swiftly on.

Governor Meier opened his regime by beginning to "clean house". One of his early targets was Henry W. Meyers, superintendent of the state prison. Here arose a contest between the three members of the state board of control, with Governor Meier on one side and with State Treasurer Thomas B. Kay and Secretary of State Hale Hoss, aligned against him. The latter two successfully defeated the governor's efforts to remove Meyers. Following his exoneration, Meyers resigned.

While battling valiantly to prevent the board of control ousting Meyers, Kay suffered a sudden stroke. He was on his feet at a dramatic hearing when it came. Death followed, again playing its hand in the state's politics. With the appointment of Rufus Holman as state treasurer to succeed Kay, Governor Meier has one of his own men on the board of control. It follows that he is now very much the head of the state government, both in name and in fact.

The newest development on the Oregon political stage is the attack by the Independence Hall or Oregon, a political organization, on the state police bill, passed at the last legislative session. The grounds that it is "an act inimical to the public welfare" and a "reversion to the czarism of old Russia." A referendum move has been started and papers have been filed preliminary to the circulation of petitions for the 10,800 names necessary to place the measure on the November ballot. Labor unions are also bitterly opposed to the bill.

In brief, the bill proposes consolidation of the state traffic division, prohibition department, and patrols of the fish and game department under a superintendent of police to be appointed by the governor. Into this atmosphere, General Butler will bring his colorful and aggressive personality. If he likes action, there is promise that things in Oregon will be to his taste.

WINKEL'S CONDITION BECOMES CRITICAL

The condition of William Winkel, Cooks, Mich., who was injured in an accident near Chilton Thursday morning, has become critical, attending physicians report. He submitted to an operation at St. Elizabeth hospital last night. Mr. Winkel received a punctured lung, a broken shoulder and several broken ribs when the truck in which he was riding overturned near Chilton.

CONDITION IMPROVES

The condition of Christ L. Roemer, 720 W. Summit-st., who submitted to an operation for appendicitis at St. Elizabeth hospital about 10 days ago, is improving. He will be able to leave the hospital the middle of next week.

Former Bishop Hopes To Remove Stigma Of Heresy

Galon, Ohio — (P) — Secluded from all but a few of his fellow towns-men in his 10-room house where he lives with his wife and writes prolifically for the cause of labor, the Rev. William Montgomery Brown, 74, plans another attempt to free himself of the stigma of heresy.

He is going before the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church next October to ask acceptance back into their fold for the rest of his declining years. He wants to be reinstated, yet still adhere to his liberal views on such subjects as evolution, creation and divinity.

Since he was expelled and the title of bishop taken from him seven years ago, he has written a half dozen books for the cause of labor. He plans two more. In addition, he writes numerous articles for labor magazines.

Although frail after a considerable loss of weight in recent years, he arises daily at 2 o'clock a. m., to go to his little study office at the rear of his home to work and write until 6 o'clock a. m., when he breakfasts on a stenographer, and then until noon to 5 o'clock p. m., sleep.

He arises for dinner, takes a little recreation and retires for the night at 8:30 or 9 o'clock p. m. His recreation consists mostly of driving his automobile with his wife sitting in the rear seat. He receives but few visitors and never attends church.

As retired bishop of Arkansas, he was brought to trial for heresy shortly after he published his book, "Communism and Christianity." The trial took place at the Trinity cathedral in Cleveland where he was charged, confirmed and ordained, and where he preached his first sermon.

His conversion to liberal religious views came gradually as he read books of such writers as Darwin, Spencer, Haeckel and Karl Marx. He came to regard the miracles of the Bible as myths and the story of Christ as survival of paganism. His trial attracted wide attention. He was convicted of heresy.

He appealed to the court of review of the church, but the conviction was upheld. Despite the conviction he maintains his right to retain the title of "bishop" with the belief that once a man is consecrated no one can take the title from him.

TRIES TO SURPRISE WIFE BUT BURGLAR SURPRISED INSTEAD

Milwaukee — (P) — Mrs. William Lembach went visiting last night and the husband remained at home. Late in the evening, he heard someone at the kitchen door. Believing it was his wife, he hid behind the opening door to give her a playful punch. A form came through. William punched. There was a yell, not at all lady-like. William fled on the lights and beheld a thoroughly bewildered burglar. William dived at the man, but the burglar beat him to the door.

Try To End Dispute In Mine Region

Harlan, Ky. — (P) — Three agencies today continued their efforts toward solution of troubles in the Harlan-coal fields.

Col. Dam M. Carrell, commanding officer of troops here to preserve order, and his staff visited communities surrounding Harlan, the storm center, to study conditions in general.

A special Harlan-co grand jury concentrated upon an investigation of shootings, burnings, explosions and general unrest growing out of the mine trouble.

Union miners seeking unionization of the field and at Harlan to discuss their problems and consider possible solutions.

Col. Carrell said he had encountered a willingness on the part of both operators and miners to cooperate. He said he believed both factions were "tired" of conditions as they exist, and that their differences would be arbitrated soon.

Since Tuesday, when four persons were slain, there have been no outbreaks, but a general feeling of unrest and apprehension prevails. The arrival of more than 300 national guardsmen Thursday had a quieting influence. Patrols have been established at Harlan and troops will be sent elsewhere if the need arises.

Shefford J. H. Blair has sent deputies to the Yancey mine in another section of the county to guard against possible trouble when the mine reopens.

The nation's business adversities are blamed by mine workers and owners as the underlying factor in the Harlan-coal field strife that has cost five lives.

A depressed coal market and high freight rates from the Harlan fields were given as principal reasons for wage readjustments and irregularity of work. An attempt to unionize the field was made, and a definite breach between operators and workers followed.

The position of the operators was outlined by George Ward, acting secretary of the Harlan-coal Operators association; E. W. Whitfield of the Harlan collieries, and Mrs. S. E. Bennett, of the Bonita mines, only woman operator in the field.

W. M. Hightower, president of the local union of the United Mine Workers of America at Harlan, said the position of the miners and the union secretary, W. B. Jones, explained the workers' viewpoint.

Building Permits

Two building permits were issued Friday by John N. Welland, building inspector. They were granted to Robert Smith, 1923 W. Winnebago-st., two car garage, cost $200; and George de Byl, 1233 S. Oneida-st., addition to residence, cost $100.

WALKER NAMED CHIEF CLERK TO RAIL HEAD

Harry Walker, former rate clerk at the Chicago and Northwestern freight depot here, has been employed by the Ann Arbor railroad at Green Bay as chief clerk to the general agent. Mr. Walker has been succeeded here by Edgar B. Last, who was formerly employed at the Oshkosh depot of the Northwestern road.

APPLETON LIONS TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Newly elected officers of the Lions club will be installed at a meeting at Conway hotel Monday noon. George Johnson is the new president. Brief reports will be given by the president, secretary and treasurer. Further announcements also will be made on the Oshkosh convention and the Treaty of Cedars program.

Wisconsin Weather

Showers tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

General Weather

A low pressure area of considerable intensity over the central states this morning with its center over northeastern Iowa. It is causing rain over scattered sections between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers and also over Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Indiana. Considerable rain has also fallen over the north Atlantic states, with Boston, Mass., reporting a rainfall of 1.34 inches. Fair weather prevails over most of the western states, with frost reported from scattered places in those districts. Continued cloudy and unsettled, with rain, is expected in this section tonight and Sunday, with little change in temperature.

Garden Parties Feature Society At Washington

Washington — (P) — This was garden party week in the capital and the president's guests, but they were invited and seen everywhere. Among other things, they attended the dinner which the minister of Czechoslovakia gave in honor of the delegates and which was followed by a reception. The vice president also has a box for the National Capital Horse show, which begins May 13 and lasts for the rest of the week, and it is pretty well settled that he will witness the Kentucky derby at Louisville.

Dead or alive presidents never cease to interest Washington visitors. Many were the footstep delegates to the chamber of commerce who visited the shoemaker to the late President Woodrow Wilson, and to President Coolidge, and heard a dissertation on the shoes they wore. Indeed, it is not "history" with Mr. Coolidge, the shoemaker while he was in Washington, is just now engaged on a pair of tan boots which the former president will wear for outing life. Vice President Curtis is also a patron of the same leather-work.

The prevailing belief is that we get our ideas for fashions and clothing styles from Paris, but it was a charming visitor from the French capital who went into ecstasies over sandwiches served at the garden party given by Secretary of State and Mr. Stimson. The ones which evoked the most enthusiasm were the little rolled sandwiches with sprigs of water-cress or mint protruding from the ends. And all of the foreign delegates were in rapports over real American ice cream, such as Mrs. Hoover had served to them at the White House.

There was a valuable exposition of women's fashions from Paris in dresses worn by the wives of delegates. Mme. Theunis, wife of the rich Belgian delegate and chamber president, wore a strikingly stylish gown fashioned of black moire in coat effect, with long flowing cuffs over it a satin coat. The American beauty red, made rather closely fitted in the body but with a flaring tunic or full skirt reaching almost to the hem of the black skirt. Her hat and shoes and other accessories were of black.

PRESIDENT TO HOLD CONFERENCES IN CAMP

Washington — (P) — President Hoover intended today to deal with facts and not fish at his Rapidan, Virginia, camp where generally he finds recreation over the weekend.

Instead of whipping a line over the Rapidan river, Mr. Hoover had arranged conferences with Secretary Hurd and the heads of various branches of the war department. Special attention was to be given to non-military activities of the department.

In addition to President and Mrs. Hoover and Secretary and Mrs. Hurd, the list of guests for the week-end included Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Payne, General MacArthur, chief of staff, Major General Mooney, assistant chief of staff, Chief of Army Engineers and Mrs. Brown, Quartermaster General and Mrs. De Witt, Chairman Wood of the house appropriations committee, Earle Kinsley, Republican national committeeman from Vermont, and Mrs. Kinsley, Theodore Joslin and Mrs. Joslin, and Lawrence Richey.

The study of war department problems was the first of a series to be held at the Rapidan on policies affecting various governmental branches.

MORE RAIN ON MENU FOR NEXT 24 HOURS

More rain is on the weather menu for Appleton and vicinity for the next 24 hours, according to predictions of the weather bureau.

W. M. Hightower, president of the local union of the United Mine Workers of America at Harlan, said the position of the miners and the union secretary, W. B. Jones, explained the workers' viewpoint.

ACRE OF POTATOES YIELDS $360 PROFIT

Woodville, S. C. — (P) — Last spring a farm woman living near here faced the prospect of going hungry, and seeing her children hungry.

One acre of garden land was found that could be used for planting any crop she chose. The woman, according to county farm leaders, had no money to buy fertilizers.

Farmers' compost was used to such extent as she was able to gather it. Careful attention to cultivation paid a good profit. When the entire crop of potatoes had been gathered and sold on the local market, she reported a net profit of $360 from the 233 bushels of spuds.

MINERS DESERT PITTS FOR OPERATIC ROLES

Brussels — (P) — When Eugene Ysaie's first opera, "Peter the Miner," is played in Paris in July, there will be real miners singing in the cast.

"For 'Peter' is written in the Walloon language and can only be rendered by 'home talent'."

After the Paris engagement the opera will tour the Walloon cities, including Charleroi, Mons, La Louviere and Dinant. The choruses will be sung by Walloon colliery workers.

THE DIFFERENCE

"Dad, what is a tractor?"

Leader of Political Party: A tractor, my son, is one who leaves our party and goes over to the enemy.

"And what do you call a man who leaves the other party to come to us?"

"A convert, my son." — Der Lustige Sachse, Leipzig.

NO REAL HURRY

"Hailo! Never saw you walking so quickly before. Where are you going?"

"A man has just stolen my car, and has gone down this road."

"But surely you don't expect to overtake him on foot?"

"Don't I? He's got no repair outfit with him." — Tit-Bits.

RIGHT AT THE START

"You are here to give evidence about the quarrel—were you there at the beginning of the hostility?"

"Yes, I was a witness at the wedding." — Dig Musketeer, Vienna.

BABSON ADVISES BUYERS TO CLIMB ON "BOND" WAGON

Expert Points Out That Stage Is Now Set for Improved Market

Babson Park, Mass.—The stage is set for an improving bond market. I am not so optimistic regarding stocks as I am regarding general business and bonds. People haven't gotten tired of buying clothes or putting money in the savings banks or buying bonds, but they are now pretty tired of buying stocks. Stocks are still unpopular and it may be some time before thrifty Americans get the Wall Street "bug" again. There will be, of course, some outstanding opportunities in individual stocks, but the trend of the times is toward safety and security. Hence my advice to investors, who have not been ready to buy, is to wait a little further time in accumulating a good list of sound bonds. By getting aboard the "bond wagon" you may not get such an exciting ride as you might with speculative stocks, but your trip will be far safer and you have the satisfaction of knowing which way you are headed.

The same underlying factors are at work now that caused the bull market in bonds beginning with 1914, 1917, 1908, 1921, 1924, 1927. First, there is the increasing purchasing power of the bondholder's dollar because of low commodity prices and falling cost of living. Just as lower living costs increase the earner's purchasing power, so they increase the purchasing power of the bondholder's income. Interest payments are made in terms of money. As the buying power of these "coupon wages" increases the market value of the bond increases, and the investor reaps the double benefit. That is what has happened in all of the important bond markets of the past hundred years. Supporting this bullish influence is the equally powerful influence of continued low money rates.

The recent action of the Federal Reserve Bank in cutting its bill-buying rate below the open market rate means that the Reserve Board is deliberately forcing a reduction of money and intends to utilize its power to keep rates down. Absence of demand from business and security markets for funds makes this policy effective.

TAX EXEMPT ISSUES
Anticipating that a heavier tax burden will fall on the country during the next few years, investors are turning more and more to all forms of non-taxable investments. This is a trend to watch. Government costs are bound to increase and it is estimated that by 1932 the payment to veterans of all wars will take about one-quarter of all Government expenditures. United States Government and municipal bonds clearly reflect this trend. There is already a wide spread between market yields afforded tax-exempt and general market bonds. This does not mean, however, that excellent opportunities are not afforded in sound financial, public utility, and railroad issues. The upward movement of municipalities will tend to pull corporation bonds forward too, aided as it is by money rates and cost of living factors.

Although higher taxes are more favorable to the tax-exempts, there are excellent purchases in good railroads, public utilities, and industries. The "good earnings" situation of the railroads is a temporary phase of every major business depression, and present prices for well selected railroad bonds should prove cheap when business again improves. The wide publicity given to the poor rail revenues has exaggerated the pessimism about this group. As a consequence prices of intrinsically good investments have been forced so low that they offer an unusual chance to obtain a high yield with reasonable security.

Returns of 6 to 6 1/2 per cent on sound issues of this kind are not being overlooked by wide awake investors.

Careful Selection Necessary
Underlying bonds of well-managed public utility operating companies should also do well. They are backed by large assets, unusually stable earnings under present conditions, and with prospects of gradual earnings growth in the future. Careful selection is necessary in the utilities as in the industries and other groups. Many issues are little more than preferred stocks. I especially refer to the bonds of some holding companies where assets of these holding companies are simply common stocks.

With regard to foreign bonds, conditions are so unsettled politically throughout Europe and South America that a high degree of risk is involved. The recent weakness in our domestic bond market has been partly due to the general foreign bond situation and the drastic slump in the Chilean and Brazilian issues. With political revolutions occurring in quick succession throughout the world, the investor can obtain far greater security by sticking to the seasoned bonds of American railroads, public utilities, municipalities, and industries. There is no need to go far afield.

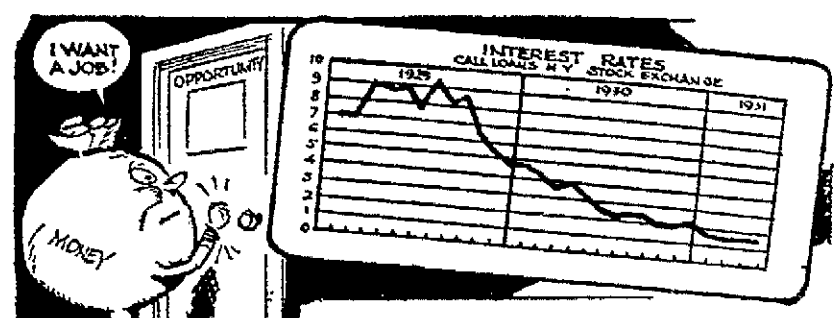

Demand Assets
In selecting a bond it is not enough that it be protected by a wide margin of physical assets, i.e., land, franchises, plants, or equipment. Such protection is necessary and a good bond ought to have properties behind it valued at least 1.50 to 2 times the amount of the issue. Remember, however, that the value of these physical properties depends upon the use that is made of them by the men in control.

The only real security a bondholder has, no matter how large the properties, is a capable and honest management and a friendly attitude of the public toward the company. These spiritual and mental qualities are the only permanent assurance of safety. I would far rather have a bond of a small company run by men of business vision and actuated by a spirit of honest dealing than I would of a huge corporation where I knew the management was negligent, selfish, and indifferent to their customers' welfare. Hence, my advice is to buy bonds on the basis of character first, and on the basis of property and earnings second.

Money Chief Victim Of Economic Depression

BY ALLARD SMITH
Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

In all of the recent discussions of unemployment and wages, little comment has been made on one of the worst victims. This is money.

No one has taken a more severe cut in wages or is more anxiously seeking work, than money.

This is reflected in the sharp drop in interest rates to the lowest levels in many years. Money loaned on call at the New York Stock Exchange is now nearly as low as 1 per cent. A sharp contrast with rates as high as 20 per cent in the widely speculative times of two years ago.

Money for hire is spoken of as a drug on Wall Street. The government finds it can borrow for less than 2 per cent. Good commercial paper is discounted at 3 or 4 per cent, instead of the formerly prevailing price of 6 per cent.

Gold in America has accumulated until half the world's monetary supply is here. The situation directly reflects the world-wide stagnation of trade. With the curtailment of commercial and financial activities, the demand for credit is less.

But the situation has in it much that is hopeful. Money is the life blood of trade. As recovery becomes more perceptible, the great force of credit will be present superabundantly, and a long period of prosperity should be assured. Capital abhors idleness. Eventually as confidence returns, it will find outlets for its restless desire for a job, and this will up to give impetus to the wheels of industry, and fill up the pay envelopes of labor.

Your Birthday

"TAURUS"
If May 11th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:10 p. m. from 3:40 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 6:10 p. m. to 8:10 p. m.

The planetary aspects of May 11th denote untoward events, caused by treacherous and chaotic influences. Things that promise well and propositions that look attractive will prove abortive. Travel will be unproductive. Routine and established custom only should be followed.

Children born on this May 11th will be imaginative, rather than practical. Unless schooled in adversity, they will be dreamers, not doers. Their natures will be emotional and their dispositions affectionate. The signs indicate that they may develop into writers or artists.

Born on May 11th, you lose contact too quickly of your feelings to ever become a power. If you wish to attain success, you must learn to dominate your inclination to "blow-up" on the slightest pretext. You are also super sensitive, and apply a personal meaning to the most innocent remarks. People are not always thinking and talking of you when they are talking to you.

Your likes and dislikes are very pronounced, and often lead you astray. You love with intensity, but without constancy. You hate with bitterness, but without reason. Your complexes are exaggerated. When in an optimistic mood, you live in the clouds, but when pessimistic, you sink to the depths. But you need to find a mental half way house, where you can secure peace and establish equilibrium.

Your judgment is quick and impulsive; you lack deliberation. You rush at things and, when it is too late, have reason to regret your hastiness. There should be a compromise between procrastination and impetuosity. "Do it now" is a good motto only if it is worth doing. In your family life, there will not be found that evenness of temperament which brings contentment in its train. There will be constant upheavals and unexpected changes.

Successful People Born May 11th:
1—John Lowell—established Lowell Institute, Boston.
2—Matthew Vassar—benefactor of Vassar College.
3—George W. Scranton—founder of Scranton, Pa.
4—Otmar Mergenthaler—inventor of Linotype type-setting machine.
5—Irving Berlin—song composer.

If May 10th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and from 4:10 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger hours are from 2 p. m. to 3:50 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m.

May 10th, according to astrological indications, does not promise to be "a day of rest and gladness." On the contrary, there are denoted many worries and a loss, and the only compensation to be found in the consolation and help received from unexpected quarters.

Children born on this May 10th will, in early years, be inconsiderate, only interested in themselves and not at all appreciative of anything done for them. In after years, they will regret this attitude and do their utmost to atone for former neglect and indifference.

Born on May 10th you are impulsive, clever and never imitative. Quiet and reserved, you do not readily entrust your thoughts and ideas to others. You give few confidences, and receive few. As a success, although your habit of making snap judgments on important matters is a danger that you should try to avoid.

You have a strong sense of justice, but your sympathies induce you often to arrive at a wrong verdict. Your emotions, rarely apparent to others, are very strong, and you unconsciously allow them to color all your actions. You are idealistic, and are never satisfied with anything but the best. You are more exacting of yourself than of others.

Susceptibility is not one of your weaknesses. When, however, you do fall in love, you will be hard hit and give all you have. Unless your affection is fully reciprocated, you are going to have a bad time.

You are energetic and hard-working, and whenever an impulse does not lead you astray, your efforts will be crowned with success. You do not care for society, and are happy with the congenial companionship of a few close friends, with whom you can think aloud—the acid test of true friendship.

Successful People Born May 10th:
1—Paul Tullane—philanthropist.
2—Horatio Allen—civil engineer.
3—John Sherman—statesman.
4—William R. Grace—merchant and mayor of New York.
5—James Bryce—former British Ambassador to Washington.
6—Sir Thomas Lipton—tea merchant.

WAGE EARNERS RECEIVED MORE MONEY IN 1929

Number of Manufacturers
Producing Over $5,000
Decreases, However

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—Although the number of manufacturing establishments in Wisconsin producing at least $5,000 worth of products a year decreased in 1929, the number of wage earners, the amount of wages, the value of the manufactured products and the amount of power used in manufacturing, all increased, according to the biennial census of manufactures report made public Saturday.

Despite the slight decrease in number of establishments, from 7,473 in 1927 to 7,430 in 1929, Wisconsin, with its population of 2,339,000, slightly more than a third of Illinois' 7,380,551 population, had almost as many manufacturing establishments as Illinois, which had 7,337, an increase from 14,711 in 1927.

Appleton was ninth among Wisconsin cities of 10,000 or more inhabitants in the number of its manufacturing establishments in 1929 with a total of 74. Outagamie county was tenth among the counties with 169 manufacturing establishments.

The 74 in Appleton employed 2,798 wage earners, paid wages amounting to $3,219,042, manufactured products worth $19,622,502 by the use of 25,238 horse power. The cost of the materials, fuel and purchased electric energy in these establishments totaled $11,578,707.

The 169 establishments in Outagamie county employed 5,410 paid wages amounting to $8,536,807, manufactured products valued at $19,333,401, used 58,457 horse power, and paid $27,007,039 for materials, fuel and purchased electric power.

Other Counties
Manufacturing establishments in nearby counties numbered 171 in Brown, 68 in Calumet, 84 in Oconto, 136 in Shawano, 19 in Waupaca and 218 in Winnebago.

For the state as a whole, the 7,330 establishments in 1929 employed 264,061 wage earners—as against the 247,722 employed by 7,473 establishments in 1927. The total amount of wages paid increased from $290,440,501 in 1927 to $322,697,105 in 1929 and on up to $352,814,551 in 1929. At the same time, the increase in cost of materials, value of products and use of horsepower constantly increased. Cost of materials went from $11,127,274,061 in 1919 to $11,578,707,808 in 1927, and to $12,051,139,120 in 1929; value of products rose from $18,846,844,307 in 1919 to $19,734,653,251 in 1927 and then to $21,538,490,172 in 1929; and horsepower consumed began at $74,820 in 1919, increased to 1,018,228 in 1927, and reached 1,261,299 in 1929.

These statistics compared with those for Illinois, reveal that Wisconsin's totals of wages paid, number of employees, cost of materials, and value of products are, in each case, almost an exact third of the Illinois totals. This 1929 totals are: 687,917 employees, $1,038,832,790 paid in wages, $3,401,595,452 spent for materials and fuel, etc., and $6,223,438,498 value of products.

The five leading counties in number of wage earners employed, other than Outagamie, Racine, Kenosha, Rock and Shawano; leaders in total cost of materials, Milwaukee, Rock, Racine, Kenosha, and Winnebago; leaders in value of products, Milwaukee, Racine, Rock, Kenosha and Winnebago, and in horsepower, Milwaukee, Outagamie, Kenosha, Racine and Wood.

BUILDING PERMITS TOTALLED $61,505

Largest Portion of Total Is for New Residences and Garages

Building permits issued during April totaled $61,505, the monthly report of John N. Welland, building inspector, reveals.

The largest portion of the total, $27,000, was for six residences and garages. Four residential buildings, additions and alterations aggregated $11,700, one residence $800, 19 residence additions and alterations, $5,600, 31 garages, $5,550, and miscellaneous buildings, $6,355.

Sixty-three building, 11 heating, and five sign permits were issued. Mr. Welland made 75 building, 11 heating, and five sign inspections, held one meeting of the board of appeals and one meeting of the board of building inspection. He investigated 57 complaints and calls, and three boilers and heating plants in regard to the smoke nuisance, and spent one afternoon with the state inspector on general inspections.

138 ARRESTED IN DRY RAIDS DURING APRIL

Madison—(UP)—The greatest activity of any April since its establishment was reported for this year by the Madison office of the federal prohibition department. According to Jay J. Nye, city administrator, 138 persons were arrested, 14 stills, 1,202 gallons of moonshine, 1,472 gallons of beer, 103 gallons of mash, two automobiles, and 7,031 gallons of mash were seized.

RULE EMPLOYERS MUST PROVIDE COMPENSATION

Madison—(UP)—All Wisconsin employers employing more than three persons must come under provisions of the state workmen's compensation act as a result of the signature yesterday of Gov. LaFollette to the Ingram bill. Farmers are excluded under the law.

Other bills signed by the governor or are
By Assemblyman Kostuck—relating to aid to blind persons in marking their ballots.

By Senator Ebbe—relating to the number of supervisors in cities having a population of 800 or less.
By committee—relating to execution against the person of judgment debtors.

ROAD BUILDERS FIND TRACES OF ICE AGE

Iowa City, Iowa—(UP)—Iowa's 1930 road building program has brought to light evidence on which George F. Kay, state geologist, has been able for the first time to estimate the duration of the "ice age" in Iowa.

These traces of the glaciers were found as new roads were cut through the hills. They indicate several ice ages scattered through a minimum of 700,000 years.

Of this time, Iowa was covered by the greatest ice sheet for at least 50,000 years. Kay thinks the remainder of the period constituting the "interglacial" intervals.

In Russia great factories are being established on some of the northern sea lakes, and the seaweed is being turned not only into paper but into many other materials of great utility.

MOTHER'S DAY

"They say that man is mighty
He governs land and sea,
He wields a mighty scepter
O'er lesser powers that be;
But a mightier power and stronger
Man from his throne has hurled,
For the hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rules the world."
In 1914, after the passage of an act by congress designating the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day, President Wilson issued a proclamation calling upon the people to display flags at their homes as "a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country."

The display of the true existing sentiment toward the mothers who have, since the beginning of time and continuing until the dawn of doom, earned it by their toil and devotion, service and sacrifice, is fine and natural too, but paltry compared to their just deserts. Let us turn to something a bit more substantial.

Carefully garnered statistics throughout this land have proven clearly that the death of mothers from childbirth causes is twice the rate in other civilized nations comparable to our own. Getting down to figures, 16,000 women die a year from causes directly related to maternity.

In answer to the question of what can be done about it, it should be interesting to note that a concentrated effort to render to expectant mothers the care and service which medical science plainly indicates they should receive has reduced the fatalities nearly 70 per cent.

In other words, out of the 16,000 who die annually, more than 10,000 might be saved.

This could be accomplished, as it has been accomplished, by bringing instruction and education to women who expect to become mothers, for two-thirds of these deaths are directly attributable to a lack of such information.

Flags and carnations, smiles and cheers, and other expressions of affectionate devotion, we would not veto for anything.

But the outward manifestations of reverence become singularly weak and tawdry when we face the fatality charts for "in all this cold and hollow world there is no found of deep, strong, deathless love, save that within a mother's heart."

THE PRINCE GOES HOME

The Prince of Wales, England's traveling man de luxe, has returned home with fifty million dollars worth of South American orders "in his pocket" and a promise of more to follow.

The prince has been a creator of goodwill and good business for his native land. The glamor and tradition which surrounds his position is an asset which in itself commands respect, but the prince has been unusually capable in handling his job or has pretty smart advisers.

If he has done nothing else, he has created a legion of boosters in that charming and clannish host of debutantes who "have danced with the prince" and who can be depended upon to bestow upon the empire the goodwill of hearts alight with youthful delight.

Seriously, however, the prince appears to be a worthy Briton who commands respect for the crown which is still the symbol of the British state—and this in a day when royalty's halo is dimming fast in the vision of the people everywhere. While he gathers business England is too wise to relegate him to the status of a private citizen.

It is understood a proposed goodwill trip of Colonel Lindbergh was cancelled out of respect for plans which had already been formulated for a similar journey by the British prince. This business prince apparently succeeded in bringing home some bacon without spilling the beans and that is good diplomacy. It will take Lindbergh to balance the account.

POUNDING THE LEGISLATURE

The attack of John B. Chapple, editor of the Ashland Press, upon practically all officialdom in the state government, with the charge that the legislature was trying to sponsor a soviet plan to wreck private industry in Wisconsin, is a reflection upon the man who uttered it.

Because some members of the legislature see fit, whether in a spirit of devil-may-care or just plain cussedness, to introduce wholly impractical and impossible measures, or because the people sometimes elect a few men to office that should be sent to school instead, does not establish the standard for the legislature as a whole, the government nor the people.

Or because the northern part of the state has been swept by fires which had also, due to high winds and dry conditions, menaced other parts of the state and the cities as well, does not call for fulsome attacks, personal abuse, or an attempt to characterize the government of the state in terms that apply only to the government at Moscow.

There is no evidence that schemes exist anywhere "to hamper and wreck private industry," much less that such schemes have been "concocted by a small clique of commissars of a Wisconsin soviet five-year-plan."

That sort of language is the daily fare among those of truly soviet temperaments.

It has no place in a commonwealth of people of restraint and intelligence who are seeking among the scores of plans submitted for the alteration of existing laws; those most in keeping with American principles and ideals.

WORLD CONTROL OF WHEAT

The International Sugar agreement to control the production and marketing of that staple commodity is to be signed in Brussels this week.

The satisfactory solution of this problem has brought favorable world attention to Thomas L. Chadbourne, the New York lawyer who devised the plan and conducted the negotiations for its acceptance.

A world wheat conference is to open in London May 19. Many of the countries to be represented, being familiar with Mr. Chadbourne's sugar plan, are requesting his services to establish a similar accord among the wheat producing nations.

The United States will be represented at the London conference. As a large producer and with 275,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat on hand, nothing could be accomplished without American cooperation.

An agreement similar to the sugar plan would mean that only an allocated amount of wheat could be exported by us unless the world price should go above a certain established base. Any excess surplus must be absorbed in our domestic market.

Mr. Chadbourne's ability and personality were factors of importance in the sugar agreement. Should he be called into action again by the wheat conference, it presages a possible agreement for the world control of wheat.

The problems involved in controlling world wheat supplies are stupendous—more so than in controlling sugar where the number of producing countries is small. The progress of the London conference and the possible involvement of a world accord to which this country must necessarily subscribe, will be a matter of national interest.

Opinions Of Others

FAUNTILER, 1931

Charles Ernest Feltow, a Columbia citizen and a chemistry professor at Columbia university, a highly educated and useful New Yorker. He had come over from England at the age of eight with his father, and acquired citizenship with the latter's naturalization.

Today Ernest Feltow is again, after sixty years, a British citizen by virtue of recent action of the London courts, and is entering the house of lords with the title of Viscount Exmouth.

He is a viscount and lord because his great-grandfather, Admiral Edward Feltow, sailed into the harbor of Algiers, like our own Decatur, burned the entire battery, arsenal and fleet of the pestiferous bey, liberated three thousand prisoners, enforced an anti-slavery treaty and forced the bey to apologize. He earned his titles—and his deeds have come down the years to reach into an American college classroom and make a British lord.

Yet Charles Ernest Feltow now reveals that he would never have left America if his aged father had not begged him on his deathbed to live in England. That is entirely believable.

Charles E. Feltow had made a name for himself in America and was happy. He had earned his own merits and titles in his own field, and was respected for his books and his achievements. To exchange those honors for a great-grandfather's in an entirely different field is nothing like the soft trade our Fauntleroy action makes it out to be.

To be in America's self-made "Who's Who," as Feltow was, is today a greater honor than to be in Britain's hereditary "Who's Who," as Lord Exmouth is. The values of the world have so changed in 1931 that we may credit Dr. Feltow with entire sincerity in saying that it was a sacrifice.—Grand Rapids, (Mich.) Press.

WERE SENDING an advance copy of this column to the weatherman . . . yes sir . . . as we were slaves say—"Go ahead and rain Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, but when Saturday comes around with Sunday after it . . . well, if the weather isn't nice, send an order in for flowers . . . this April-showers-May-flowers business is all in reverse this year anyway . . .

Now General Smedley Butler has revealed how he acted as a spy in Mexico in 1914. General Butler has had his fights with Mussolini and the folks down in Haiti. Now, if he's given time, he'll probably explain that the real reason why the United States hasn't joined the League of Nations is because the countries of Europe don't want Smedley to be in charge.

And Mexico will probably want some apologies, too. Like the ones Mussolini got.

"IGNORES GUNS AND SAVES HALF MILLION." (Headline.) We're never going to stare another revolver in the face again. In fact, we'll probably snub the damned things. Half a million. Why we'd insult a machine gun for that much.

Thirty years ago, Carrie Nation was put in solitary confinement for aiding her jailer and tearing his hair in an attempt to get out of jail. Today, if she tried that, she'd be given all the high-priced legal talent available, a big trial, lots of sob stuff, and a movie contract.

Carrie, you were just born several years too soon.

Maybe We Should Take It to the Movies

Amalgamated Gadgets has got itself into a rut. It doesn't know what a change in life means. For weeks it's been parked at a small low and we're getting tired of looking at it in that position every day. Maybe it'll change, but we know darned well where it's going if it does.

A horse by the name of Milkman has been running in the races at Jamaica. Which shows how things are changing. We can remember when a good movie plot was about the milkman's horse which was taken out of the shafts, put under a saddle and jockey and which won the Derby with odds of 200-1 on him and made the impoverished hero a million dollars.

Yeah, It Would Cut Down on the Waste

And then we read about the efficiency expert who is in favor of building apple-vending machines to take the place of the unemployed in the big cities who sell apples for a living.

And in the same place we read that the Alaskan reindeer, protected by the law, have multiplied from several animals to hundreds of thousands. And there has been the same experience with speakeasies.

If that weatherman makes a mistake, you folks will have to go our bail.

ON GOSSIPS

I wonder why it is the sinner
So very quickly will appear,
And why the wrong and vicious thought
So very easily is wrought?
Why is it at the very first
We often think and say the worst?

Gossip is quick and praise is slow;
Standards on rubbish heaps will grow,
But motive fine and action good,
Though seen are little understood.
The what is base the mind reacts
Impulsively without the facts.

A gardener who has planted seeds
Does not begin to pull the weeds
When the first tender shoots of green
In little crowded rows are seen.
He waits till fuller growth declares
Which shoots are flowers and which are tares.

So with my neighbors I would deal
And wait the truth the days reveal.
Of them I'd think the best unless
They prove their own unworthiness.
Nor would I judge another's acts
On motives till I have the facts.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, May 12, 1906

Miss Aimee Baker had a collection of water color paintings and drawings on exhibition at the free public library.

The cast of characters for the senior high school play, "The Belle of Richmond," which was to be presented May 21 at the Appleton theatre, included Leland Marston, Will Ross, Frank Schneider, Russell Pratt, Thomas Barnes, Allen Ellis, Will Lindsay, Mae Spencer, Prudence, Kuehnstedt, Vivian Sherry, and Sadie Heckert.

At the meeting of the Fourth district school board the preceding day, all of the old teachers were recognized for the following year.

Pupils of St. Mary's school presented an entertainment the previous night at Appleton theatre for the benefit of the San Francisco quake sufferers.

The W. S. Patterson company was awarded the contract for installing the plumbing system in the proposed poor house to be built in Winnebago-co.

TEN YEARS AGO

Saturday, May 7, 1921

Lives of the crew of the tug Marston and barge No. 8, owned by Cook and Brown Line company, Oshkosh, were imperiled about 3 o'clock the previous Friday afternoon when both boats were caught by the swift current of the Fox River at the dam above John-st bridge and dashed against the iron sluice gates. Both boats sank within a few minutes, after the men had scrambled to safety.

Miss Leone Gardner was spending the weekend with relatives at De Pere.

Miss Crescencio Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ciske, Menasha, took place that morning at St. Joseph church, Menasha.

Arthur J. Ingold, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ingold, was one of the Appleton students at the University of Wisconsin who was taking an active part in the drive of $250,000 for a stadium as a memorial to the soldiers of Illinois who fought in the great war.

Personal Health Talks

THE FREEDOM OF THE DIAPHRAGM

Data on the weight, height, chest measurement and lung capacity of 6,000 college freshmen girls 18 to 19 years old, recorded in five colleges in the past fifty years show that in that period the average weight has increased 8 per cent, the height less than 2 per cent, the chest measurement a shade less than 3 per cent, and the lung capacity nearly 4 per cent.

To the casual layman this signifies that the bellies today are bigger and better than ever. To me it maybe I had better not risk the wisecrack. But I may be permitted to point out the discrepancy in the figures, so to speak. If we shall we account for greater increase in lung capacity than in chest measurement? It is a little difficult, owing to the prudery of the censors. Perhaps we can get by with an allusion to the diaphragm. The girls nowadays give the diaphragm a better break.

Frankly we should give credit where credit is due. It is the gradual insinuation of physical education into the common school and high school courses that deserves most of the credit for the bigger and better women that bless the world today.

No use arguing about this. A girl can't run a race or hop a hurdle or play a fair game of basketball with corsets or French heels on. Therefore it is a fine thing for the future.

So very easily is wrought? Why is it at the very first
We often think and say the worst?

I have very good teeth and friends frequently comment on them; but I dare not tell them I never brush or wash my teeth. I go to the dentist once a year to have them cleaned. I eat three apples every day. Does that keep them clean? (A. R.)

Answer—Yes, the eating of apples is fine for the teeth. What does your dentist say about it? I hope he concedes that now and then one who never brushes his teeth may have as good and as clean teeth as anybody who brushes them religiously.

Take a Dozen Belles of Air

I want to tell you of the fine results those belly breathing exercises had for my daughter, who used to suffer so each month . . . now she is away at school and has scarcely any trouble at all. For myself, it does not only help me to go to sleep but relieve me of that awful "gassy" condition. I am very grateful. (Mrs. A. F.)

Answer—Delighted. Detailed instructions for the belly breathing exercise will be sent any reader who asks for it and incloses stamped addressed envelope.

Psychology and Alopecia

Could you tell me what is good for baldness? (L. K.)

Answer—I think psychology has something to do with it. The balder you get the more you worry, and the more you worry the balder you grow. So after a while you just say what the hell and from then on your remaining hair stays ever so long. The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE watermelon didn't last so very long. The bunch ate fast, until the Travel Man exclaimed, "For goodness sake don't stuff. If any more you Tinsies take, I know you'll have a tummyache. Let's journey on our merry way. You all have had enough."

"Oh, my, you're right," one Tiny said. "I'm getting dizzy in the head. I wish we had some place to rest. I cannot wait around." And then he added, "Listen, boys, I thought I heard a funny noise. I think it was some music. Gee, I wish it could be found."

They then stood quiet for a while and then they saw Clowzy spread a smile. "It was some music," he exclaimed. "I see the players. My, just look! They're coming down the street. Perhaps they'll give us all a treat. At least I'm going to ask them are they saunter right on by."

When Clowzy ran up to the men he spread a real broad smile and then said, "Won't you kindly play for us? I'll do a little dance." One player answered, "Sure we will." The music started. What a thrill. Then Clowzy made the whole crowd laugh when he began to prance.

The Travel Man soon tipped the men and they were on their way again. All of a sudden Clowzy jumped and cried, "Hey, come with me. I see a sight that'll give us all just a little Chinese like. Let's go and say hello to him. He's cute as he can be."

"Course Clowzy was the first to get up to the child. He said, 'Don't fret. I am not going to hurt you. Then he called to all the rest, 'Come

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Theodore Dreiser's comments on the movies are costing the magnates more than blushes.

He is supposed to have been offered more than $100,000 for the right to film his "American Tragedy." But that was not the first Hollywood money tossed to America's "slapping" novelist.

Several years ago one company retained him at a fee of $5,000. All it got was his opinion of the Hollywood product. And that sums up in the word "junk." Soon afterward another company hired him for $25,000. They couldn't agree, either.

Dreiser made it quite plain that he was not at all interested in employing his magnificent brain "on a little thing like a kiss." Anyway, he's no yes-man.

Manhattan notes
Contract bridge guides are being cut down to handbooks with indices for ready references during the game. It's getting more like trigonometry every day.

Floyd Gibbons had to sign a morality clause with his movie contract. And he an old newspaper man.

Two-pants suits are featured again this spring. But George C. Tyler, theatrical producer, wears high-topped boots and Charlie Chaplin's feet overshoes are always in cloth-top buttoned shoes.

Random sights—cops, flags and official cars in honor of a visiting prince at the Ritz; clerks in cutaway coats at one of the fancier groceries; the Pekingese shop on Fifty-seventh street, and the Fifth avenue Sunday fashion and baby carriage parade along the Central park wall.

About this time of year New Yorkers begin thinking of how they miss the clackety-clack of an early morning lawn mower.

Aaron Burr was the first leader of Tammany, even if you don't care.

Trivia

A friend who gets about reports seeing a wedding in a mid-town apartment, performed by the proprietor's brother-in-law. It seems the minister thought the place was just a restaurant.

King Alfonso's abdication was bad news for some Spaniards in town who count their wealth in pesetas. They felt it took more to buy New York dollars.

Now it's radio performers who are getting food named for them. The first is a Lew Conrad club sandwich—titled for a crooner. Layer of cake, layer of strawberries, ice cream, cake, butterscotch sauce and whipped cream.

Note for a short story—a show girl flitted rich man; for spite, he got married; then wrote her a long letter telling how happy he was on his honeymoon. She, being not so dumb, said in telling about it, "If he really was happy he would not have written that letter. Or even thought of me."

Today's Anniversary

CAPTURE OF FRESNOY

On May 9, 1917, the Germans recaptured Fresnoy at the height of the battle of Arras.

Philip Gibbs, war correspondent, describes the capture as follows: "Upon this village (Fresnoy) and the neighboring ground the enemy concentrated everything he has in artillery. He directed on this sector of the front and in addition to the ordinary high explosives and shrapnel, he flung a storm of gas shells wherever he thought the British had battery positions.

Fresnoy itself had been a difficult place to hold since the Canadians took it so gallantly on May 8. The enemy had marked it down for attack, and for several days, made strong counter-thrusts on each side of it in order to prevent British troops getting forward to straighten out the line. English troops had to bear the brunt of the German concentrated fury."

shake hands with this little lad. I know that that will make him glad. He'll likely like each one of you, but he will like me best.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—We follow President Hoover and thousands of other Washington people out to the baseball park on opening day and in addition to a good game see:

Senator Borah of Idaho in the crowd. It was the first time in years that the senator had been out to see a game of opening day.

With him was Mrs. Borah, an ardent fan, who, incidentally was responsible for his presence. The senator refuses to play golf, cares little for baseball, prefers to take his recreation by daily horseback rides in Rock Creek park.

That other prominent "insurgent" senator, Norris of Nebraska, was all set to go, but was held in a conference too late.

Other senators not held in conference were Watson of Indiana, McNamara of Oregon, Cousins of Michigan and George of Georgia.

Secretary Mellon arrived 15 minutes ahead of time. He walked into the second row of the presidential box, lighted a slim cigar and settled down comfortably to view the game.

The President Arrives

Secret service men began pushing spectators aside for the entrance of the presidential party. The bank struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner." At the conclusion, President Hoover turned and greeted Secretary Mellon.

Secretary of Labor Daugh, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of War Hurley sat near the President. With Secretary Hurley was Mrs. Hurley. She faced the battery of cameras unflinchingly. Cabinet members greeted her.

The president was attired in brown from head to foot. His brown spring suit was set off by a brown tie with small gold woven dots. His hat and shoes also were brown.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington ball club, entered the box occupied by the President's party, greeted each one and took Secretary Stimson by the arm and led him out on the field.

Then The Parade
Catching step to the music, Stimson led the parade to the corner of the park where the flag of each country in the Pan-American Union were to be raised.

Captain Marliet of Fort Meyer had wheeled two guns in front of the left field bleachers. "Spic and span" soldiers stood ready to fire the presidential salute.

Up went the captain's arm—then down. A gun crashed, then another—one gun for each flag.

Senator Nye of North Dakota winced at each crash. "Finally he turned to one side and remarked: 'There ought to be a law against this.'"

The guns ceased firing at last. The parade returned to the stands. President Hoover threw out the ball.

The season of 1931 was on—

The buzzer on the copy chute next to the city editor's desk sends forth its familiar buzz and the muffled voice of Melvin Heinzel calls from the composing room the familiar questions, "Is society all in?" or "Are sports all in?" One of Mr. Heinzel's many duties is to see that copy as it comes helters-skelter from the editorial room, is properly distributed to the linotype machines. He works on the news bank in the composing room and is charged with the responsibility of having the news ready for the make-up man. Mr. Heinzel supervises the details of proofing, type correction and sees that every story is proofread before it goes to the make-up man. Before coming to the Appleton Post-Crescent in 1927, Mr. Heinzel worked at Schell brothers for three years. He delivered groceries after school hours and on Saturdays. The first job he ever had was selling Sunday papers when he was in grade school. Mr. Heinzel was born in Appleton and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heinzel, 1808 N. Superior-st. He attended Washington school and Appleton high school.

SURVEY SHOWS MOST FARMS HAVE WATER Many Creeks, Wells Have Dried Up, However; Some Farmers Haul Supply

BY W. F. WINSEY Seymour—A survey conducted this week over a large part of Outagamie county showed that despite the drought of the entire past year the great majority of farms are still supplied with water for livestock. Creeks are dried up in number, but wells are a number of surface wells on the farms. A few farmers whose surface wells and creeks are dry haul water from drilled wells or rivers. Hauling water for farm use in the county is a rare exception. A number of farmers whose surface wells here dried up or were threatening to do so, have had new wells drilled, and well drillers are now at work in several parts of the county. The reason that Outagamie county farmers have fared so well during the drought is that they made the depth of drilled wells the principal equipment of their dairy farms. Winter crops such as alfalfa, sweet clover, winter wheat and rye have recovered from the drought of last fall and from close clipping, and late pasturing, and all of these crops as a general thing are showing good stands and good spring growth. Red clover, however, has not done as well as the other crops mentioned above. The weakened condition of these crops when winter set in was the basis of total loss predictions. Permanent pastures in meadows and woodlots are short and thin and some time will elapse before these pastures supply much feed. Small grain seeded this spring has really performed miracles in producing good stands and growth in fields that are as dry as ash heaps to a depth of three to eight feet below the surface. The outlook at the present time is better than the yearly average yield of spring and winter grains, and of alfalfa and sweet clover. Permanent pastures indicate that the crop will be light. While being very much pleased with the present condition of their crops, farmers generally are predicting that their crops will not be worth harvesting unless the usual spring and summer rainfalls set in before the latter part of the month of June. They say that with the soil as dry as it is now, crops could not survive a repetition of the drought of last summer.

WORK MIRACLES IN REMODELING OF OLD HOMES

And Now Is the Time to Do Your Rebuilding, Supply Men Say

Builders are working miracles in the transformations of old, decrepit houses into new residences of modernistic appearance—and at prices within reach of almost every pocketbook, according to building supply men. Exteriors and interiors are being so reconstructed that home owners find it difficult to recognize them as their old homes. The outward appearance of the home can be completely altered, additional rooms added, greater convenience created in room space, inside accessibility to the basement, more closet space, modern kitchen layout, furnace heating, a fire place for the living room, and other improvements are relatively easy to make. The first step taken in the modernizing of many homes is the lowering of the house floor level from 15 to 20 inches. In many cases this does not even necessitate a change in the old foundation, but requires only the jacking up of the house and the refitting of trestling or underpinning to the elevation desired. Many houses are transformed into modern residences by the addition of a new roof and by covering the old worn clapboards with a layer of shingles. Old porches, with their fancy scroll worked rails can be removed and a new glass-enclosed porch added. Many homes are having new enclosed porches added to afford more floor space for summer and winter comfort. The greatest of all miracles are being worked on the interior of homes, according to supply men. Old plaster, covered with a thick layer of wall paper is being torn from the walls, to make way for new plaster, painted or tinted in a variety of colors. Old laths are being razed to be replaced by various kinds of fibre sheeting to which plaster sticks permanently. The sheeting serves as an insulator, especially on outside walls, and protects the plaster against cracking. Prices on the various kinds of plaster and sheeting are below normal, according to supply men. The latest kinds of pulp and cement plaster, with or without color, is available at much lower prices than a year ago. The interiors of homes can be refinished in gum wood, white pine, or hard woods, supply men say, at very little cost. Prices on the various kinds of better grade lumber are lower now than they have been in years. Old hardwood floors, stained and marred by years of hard use, can be sanded and refinished to appear like new, or they can be replaced with oak or maple at prices somewhat below normal. Kitchen and bath room floors are being covered with the latest creations in linoleum or similar floor coverings at much lower prices. Many bath room floors are being replaced with real or imitation tile, builders say.

USES UNDERGROUND SYPHON TO SUPPLY WELL WITH WATER

BY W. F. WINSEY Hortonville—An underground siphon of his own design is being used by L. H. Manley, route 1, to draw water from a well 200 feet from his farm yard to maintain a supply in his farm yard well which went dry some time ago. The bottom of the well that was exhausted is 17 feet below the bottom of the well supplying the water. The water is forced along an ascending slope of 200 feet from the supply well before being discharged into the farm yard well. The flow of water stops only when the water in both wells reaches the same level. To start the siphon, Mr. Manley attaches a special pipe to the siphon and through this special pipe fills the siphon with water. Mr. Manley explained that as a boy he used to play with siphons and knew just what they would do. The siphon that is now supplying water for him is just like those with which he used to play but is much larger and longer. It is made of three quarter inch iron pipe and covered in a trench.

Things Of Simplicity Held Best

BY ANGELO PATRI

Simple things are usually lovely. They are more likely to come to us unspoiled by the hands of the decorator than the ornate bits done by the sophisticated wise ones.

I like to see the lines of a house sweep and stand, as though they defined a purpose and served it well. I do not like the confusion of gables and roofs and unexpected windows and porches. When the house speaks directly and says, "Here I am, all there is of me," I like it the better for its directness and simplicity.

Clothes that are cut in unusual fashions, decorated with pockets, feeling of comfort. Clothes ought first to suit your need and then be as beautiful as simplicity of material and line and cut can make them. The elaboration of the stylists, the straining to find something different carries over into the result and affects the wearer.

We are all searching for peace. Beauty brings peace always. But beauty is ever simple and direct. She carries too much of truth within herself to be tricked and trimmed and tortured with detail. The simple direct tone is beauty's own. It speaks clearly but we prefer, at times, not to listen. The fact is that truth and beauty are so close to us, so much a part of daily living, that we pass them by in search of something out of the ordinary, something exceptional that has been reserved for us, and us alone.

I shall never forget the amazement of a young man, a high school senior, when somebody in the school referred to his grandfather as a fine man. He smiled incredulously. "He is my grandfather," he said. "He lived in a simple house and did the usual things. To be sure, his house had a certain dignified air in its simplicity. The orchard in the rear was one of the best; the flowers in the garden were the loveliest of their kind; the old place had an air. But it was grandfathers that settled the matter. A new house, one of those in the development now that would be something. And if "Gran" would only drive a big car—and look the part."

It is a fortunate thing that each generation has a share of "Grans." A few people cling to the beauty of simple living, simple things, simple thoughts. They struggle to hold them. Simplicity of living is not gained without a battle. The overdone thing is always easiest. Simplicity is gained by elimination, abstinence, selection. That requires power, the understanding that is knowledge. It is intelligence at its best.

None is so weary as he who loses himself in a multiplicity of things and events and people. None is so serene, so at peace in his soul, as he who lays down his life in sweeps of simple lines, direct, purposeful, strong. Proportion is the essence of beauty. Simplicity is the spirit of beauty. How much overload are you carrying? How close to simplicity are you getting?

Anne Nichols Convinced That Dieting Does Pay

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright 1931, by Cons. Press
Hollywood —(CPA)— Friends of Anne Nichols, as well as Anne Nichols herself, are chuckling over the question of whether dieting pays. There are two schools of thought on this subject, but in spite of everything, the lady who got several million dollars in stage and screen rights from her drama, "Able's Irish Rose," throws her weight in the scales on the side of diet.

She hasn't anywhere near so much weight to throw as she had a few months ago. Hence the chuckles and arguments.

Miss Nichols herself admits that what with prosperity and this and that, she attained a weight of 205 pounds although she is short in stature. By dieting under the care of a physician she reduced to her present weight of 135 pounds. Feel-

MOTHER'S DAY

16,000 babies will have no share in Mother's Day. Their mothers died in childbirth during the past year.

Most of these deaths were preventable. The death rate among 5,000 mothers cared for by the Maternity Center Association, New York, was cut 65 per cent.

Proper diet formed an important part of this care. Every expectant mother should have plenty of milk, fruits and green leafy vegetables. Pure milk is required for the nursing mother, too.

If all mothers had expert medical and nursing care, beginning at the earliest possible moment and continuing throughout the entire period, motherhood would be a happy, safe experience.

The Story of Sue

THE rope which held the swing to the ceiling was slitting. Slowly, surely, yet as steadily as the threads were uncoiling, Sarah saw it and raised her hands to her throat unconsciously, in the way that women do when they are frightened.

But she couldn't talk. And she must! She must sound a warning! It seemed to her that a long parade of minutes passed. But only a second, scarcely that, had gone by when she spoke.

"Quick! The rope's breaking!" There was a second of silence, startled, frightened silence. And in that second Joan glanced up and saw what had happened.

Then Sarah called. "It's just one side, Joan. Cling tight and the rope will let you down long enough for us to catch you." "I'm coming!" That was Ted. "Sitting this way like Sarah did." "I can't! I can't swing! I wasn't going to do that!" There was no pretense about her fright. Her voice was too scared to be dramatic. And her gay mood was gone.

"Sit tight. And let the rope go! Don't... break... your hold!" There was a second of silence, startled, frightened silence. And in that second Joan glanced up and saw what had happened.

Therefore, don't do anything about attempting to win him back. Accept the finality of his last statement, and get along without him.

JACKIE: Since you are not engaged to the boy, it's quite all right for him to see other girls, and so you have no legitimate cause for complaint now. Perhaps he's just found out for the first time that there are other attractive damsels to be seen, and he intends to see them, before settling down forever.

Perhaps he has a vague idea that a little jealousy may be good for you and consequently delights in mentioning dates with other girls. In either case, don't make a scene about his change of attitude. Certainly go on seeing him, just as you always do, and be as friendly and natural as possible. You will gain nothing by creating a real grievance out of nothing.

If this flirtation is to end in friendship, let it be friendship. It's a very useful thing to have plenty of men friends, and only the generous girl, not given to too much jealousy keeps plenty of men friends about her.

HAIR WAS NEVER SO IMPORTANT AS AT PRESENT

BY ALICIA HART

Woman's crown of glory often looks like a shining halo these days, with the new little brats of hats pushed way back off the top of the head.

Hair never was so important as it is right this minute. At least not since today's generation can remember. If you have pretty hair, don't worry about your uneven features, your eyes that aren't the color you like best, or your figure which is not 100 per cent.

Just dress up to that head of hair, wear your hats back so it will show to best advantage and know you're scheduled to make a hit wherever you go.

The new coiffures go in for long, low, easy waves. Not the least like the tight, even marcelled heads that hobbled here, there, everywhere in such brisk manner a couple of summers ago.

If you have one side of your face that isn't quite as perfect as the other, part your hair on the imperfect side. A change in part is a stimulating thing. It is good for your hair. It is better for your spirit. Just seeing yourself look a few bits different makes you suspect that you look better. That never hurt any of us!

If you are letting your hair grow, curl up those "scolding locks" that slip out of the snood. They are irresistible as "tendrils." They are unsightly as "stringy locks."

If your hair is really long, you might try the brand new "halo braid" coiffure. Part your hair in the middle, from center clear to the nape of your neck. Braid both sides and place the braid around the crown of your head, back off the top of your head, tilted up on the right side, down on the left, precisely like the new hats are worn. It's a knock-out if you are young and charming, and, at times and if necessary, look demure.

Off your forehead is the first step in any new coiffure. A few bangs, curls or waves on one side, the other bare. If your ears are big, cover the bottoms, let the tops stick through and, of an evening, rouge these tops.

It's a year to experiment with every coiffure you see. Be quite unscrupulous. Just copy everybody until you see one you like. Make it your own. There's no copyrighting and individual coiffure that I know. And certainly such a little thing as ethics never obtains in such a thing as this beauty business. Just as a lady as you can. You owe it to yourself.

Salient Points of Bidding Contract: South opens the bid with One No Trump, and West passing. North feels that with anything but a mere minimum No Trump bid in South's hand a Small Slam should be made either at Spades or Hearts, and that even with a minimum No Trump bid in South's hand, five odd should be made. Accordingly he makes a forcing take-out of Three Spades, and, East passing, South bids Three No Trumps rather than assist the Spade take-out. He knows that if North is not willing to play the hand at Three No Trumps, he will make a further bid. West passes and North, for reasons heretofore stated, bids Five Hearts. East passes and South with better than a minimum No Trump bid in his hand bids Six Hearts, concluding the bidding.

Auction: South opens the bidding with One No Trump and West passing North takes out with Two Spades, the higher ranking of his two five card suits. East passes and North, after bidding but the one Spade bid honors in each of the other three suits, bids Two No Trumps. West passes and North bids Three Hearts concluding the bidding.

The Play East opens the Four of Diamonds. The trick is taken with the Ace in Dummy. Two rounds of trumps establish the fact that West originally held three and that, therefore, South cannot trump but one Spade. Since the adverse Spades are also unevenly divided, South must lose one trick in that suit, but he will make his Small Slam.

Auction Bidding 1st Rd. 2nd Rd. 3rd Rd. South N. T. 3 N. T. 6 West Pass Pass Pass North 3 5 5 East Pass Pass Pass

Where the partner of an original bidder is to make a forcing take-out, there are two possibilities as to the ultimate objective. First, he may be simply desirous of reaching a game going contract and have no immediate idea of a Slam unless the original bidder should invent it. Second, a Slam bid may be his ultimate objective.

In the latter case he should not be content on the second round of the bidding to bid for a game. If he should do so, the original bidder would simply read the first take-out to conform to the first proposition given above, and, therefore, let the bidding die. If, as in the above deal, North is extremely anxious to arrive at a Slam bid, Five Hearts—not Four Hearts—should be bid on the second round.

NEW SIGNAL LINE NEARS COMPLETION

Police and Fire Alarm System extended from College-ave to Outagamie-st

The installation of the new fire and police signal line from College-ave to Outagamie-st is nearing completion. The placement of new poles by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company along the railroad right-of-way necessitated the new line.

The system from the flats to Foster-st, from S. Oneida-st to Jefferson-st, and from S. Oneida-st to Simple things are usually lovely. They are more likely to come to us unbidden by the hands of the hands of the beautifier than are the ornate bits done by the sophisticated wise ones.

Things Of Simplicity Held Best

I like to see the lines of a house sweep and stand, as though they defined a purpose and served it well. I do not like the confusion of gables and porches. When the house speaks directly and says "Here I am, all there is of me," I like it the better for its directness and simplicity.

Clothes that are out in unusual fashions, decorated with pockets, feeling of comfort. Clothes ought first to suit your need and then be beautiful and cut can make them. The elaboration of the stylized, straining to find something different carries over into the result and affects the wearer.

We are all searching for peace. Beauty brings peace always. But beauty was ever simple and direct. She carries too much of truth within herself to be tricked and trimmed and tortured with detail. The simple direct tone is beauty's own. It speaks clearly but we prefer, at times, not to listen. The fact is that truth and beauty are so close to us, so much a part of daily living, that we pass them by in search for something out of the ordinary, something exceptional that has been reserved for us, and us alone.

I shall never forget the amazement of a young man, a high school senior, when somebody in the school referred to his grandfather as a fine man. He smiled incredulously. "He is my grandfather, you know."

"Yes, a fine man. An extraordinary man. I have never met one with a clearer vision, a finer perception of life. A rare man, is your grandfather?"

The boy had lived with "Gran" all his life. He knew nothing about him. He wore plain clothes and talked in plain language. He lived in a simple house and did the usual things. To be sure, his house had a certain dignified air in its simplicity. The orchard in the rear was one of the best; the flowers in the garden were the loveliest of their kind; the old place had an air. But it was grandfather that settled the matter.

Now, a new house, one of those in the development now that would be something. And if "Gran" would only drive a big car—and look the part.

It is a fortunate thing that each generation has a share of "Gran." A few people cling to the beauty of simple living, simple things, simple thoughts. The struggle to hold on to simplicity of living is not gained without a battle. The overdone thing is always easiest. Simplicity is gained by elimination, abstention, selection. That requires power, the understanding that is knowledge. It is intelligence at its best.

None is so weary as he who loses himself in a multiplicity of things and events and people. None is so serene, so at peace in his soul, as he who lays down his life in sweeps of simple lines, direct, purposeful, strong. Proportion is the essence of beauty. Simplicity is the spirit of beauty. How much overload are you carrying? How close to simplicity are you getting?

Anne Nichols Convinced That Dieting Does Pay

BY JESSIE HENDERSON Copyright 1931, by Cons. Press Hollywood—(CPA)—Friends of Anne Nichols, as well as Anne Nichols herself, are chuckling over the question of whether dieting pays. There are two schools of thought on this subject, but in spite of everything, the lady who got several million dollars in stage and screen rights from her drama, "Abie's Irish Rose," throws her weight in the scales on the side of diet.

She hasn't anywhere near so much weight to throw as she had a few months ago. Hence the chuckles and arguments.

Miss Nichols herself admits that what with prosperity and this and that, she attained a weight of 205 pounds although she is short in stature. By dieting under the care of a physician she reduced to her present weight of 135 pounds. Feeling pretty pleased at this result, she went to lunch at a fashionable hotel the other day and when the bill had been settled she found that there was no money in her purse.

"Upon her first arrival in Hollywood, Miss Nichols had occupied a bungalow at this hotel. In fact she had occupied it for two years. She asked the hotel to cash a check after the recent luncheon. Scanning the check and scanning Miss Nichols—who for some time has lived in a house in the hills—the hotel official inquired: "Which Miss Nichols are you?"

"Anne Nichols," replied Anne Nichols, pointing to the signature on the check, "the writer."

The hotel official scanned Miss Nichols again and smiled. "It's a good idea but you picked the wrong name," he observed skeptically, "next time pick some one whom you resemble."

"Don't I look like Anne Nichols?" Anne Nichols queried, perfectly delighted.

"Your features are like hers," the official conceded, "but Miss Nichols is at least twice your size." And he declined to cash the check.

Weren't you sore? Miss Nichols was asked. "Sore?" she answered, "I felt so complimented that I went out of the place walking on air!"

Starts Midnight Show to night at 11:40 Charlie Chaplin in "City Lights" at Appleton Theatre.

Miss Nichols, who presided at the dinner, was given the award for the highest single score, Miss Regina Lehrer had the second highest score. The Barbs won the prizes for both the high single game and the high game series. Miss Haag won the awards for the high individual series and for the highest season average. Miss Lorene Landwehr had the second highest average and Miss Loretta Griesbach the third.

Miss Lehrer won the prize at Court Whist, played after the dinner.

Leading Cinema Stars Will Be Seen In Pictures Here Next Week

PREDICT CHAPLIN FILM WILL CHANGE TREND OF PICTURES

City Lights Defies Present Policies of Hollywood Pro- ducers

Acclaimed his greatest contribution to the screen, Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" will open an engagement at the Appleton Theatre tonight at the midnight show and Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, bringing to his city a non-dialogue motion picture production, which, it is believed, will be the forerunner of many more screen offerings introducing action, synchronized with music and sound effects.

More than two years in time have been devoted by Chaplin to the making of "City Lights" and it represents an investment of $1,500,000 of the comedian's own money. All of this is Chaplin's answer to the talking picture and his firm stand for pantomime motion pictures.

"City Lights" will occupy the screen about one hour and twenty minutes. The story may be termed a romantic comedy, although many of its highlights are brilliantly dramatic, in fact tragic. It is an original idea and was written by Chaplin. He is likewise responsible for the direction.

The action takes place in a large city. There is nothing elaborate about the story and it is its simplicity that will undoubtedly gain for it a permanent place in the theatre. The characters are natural such as rub elbows with each other throughout the daily walks of life.

There are only three players vital to the story. There is not the eternal triangle and that which happens has to do with a tramp, a flower girl who is blind and a millionaire, who has his eccentricities. Incidental to these there are three others. The girl's grandmother, the millionaire's butler and a prizefighter. While the others make up the city, just the way city with its milling throng.

A new face comes to the screen in "City Lights," Virginia Cherrill, as the girl. This is Miss Cherrill's initial bow in motion pictures and advance reports indicate that she is due to win favor. She entered the film world from a social life and despite the difficult portrayal entrusted to her, it is believed she has acquired herself with much credit.
The "flower" woman is a natural blonde with blue eyes.

Harry Myers, who by no means is new to the screen, plays the part of the eccentric millionaire. For many years Myers has been a leading player and star in his own right and as the chief foil to Chaplin, he is deemed to be at his best. Picture followers will remember Myers for his excellent work in "The Conquering March" as the grandmother;
Allan Garcia in the role of the but-

Wheeler, Woolsey and Dorothy Lee

Robert Woolsey prepares to deliver an ultimatum against all love-making when he catches Dorothy Lee and Bert Wheeler in an amorous pose in "Cracked Nuts" at the Midnight show tonight and Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the Fox Theatre.

MANY GOOD GAGS IN CRACKED NUTS

Noted Comic Writers Sup- plied Ideas and Situations for Film

No comedy of recent times can boast so distinguished a staff of humorists as collaborated in the making of Radio Pictures' "Cracked Nuts" which opens Monday at the Fox theatre, with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey co-starring.

The story of this infectious comedy came from the inspired pens of Douglas MacLean, who is still one of the screen's greatest comedians, and Al Boasberg, who Hollywood proudly calls its greatest wit.

Boasberg, incidentally, is the man who furnishes most of the nation's radio entertainers with original jokes and comedy sketches.

The dialog, which Wheeler and Woolsey use to such good effect in the picture, was written by Boasberg and Ralph Spence. Spence is the highest-priced comedy constructor and writer in the screen colony.
He also is a playwright of distinction.

After it had assembled the story and principal cast, the studio still further strengthened the picture with the addition of three other nationally known funsters—Dorothy Lee, Ben Turpin and Edna May Oliver.

And last but not least, Edward Cline was chosen to direct the picture because of his tremendous success and experience in comedy. One of the Mack Sennett directors of the time of Charlie Chaplin and Gloria Swanson, Cline has been responsible for more than 400 pictures during his twenty years of active screen work.

With the presentation of "City Lights" Chaplin makes his debut as a musician. The entire musical synchronization of the production, with only few exceptions, is from music composed by the comedian.
Many months were devoted to this phase by the producer, who is, although not generally known as an accomplished pianist, organist, violinist, cellist and harpist.

SEVEN ARCONIAS TOP VAUDEVILLE

German Athletes Will Give Performances at Fox Theatre Sunday

The Fox Theatre, Appleton's Palace of Entertainment, again offers its patrons excellent vaudeville on the stage Sunday afternoon and evening. The first act without a doubt will hold you spellbound from start to finish, "The Seven Arconias," all sensational German athletes will entertain you with their acrobats and tester board act. The second act, Ned Norworth & Company in "The Smiling Son From Broadway" will make you laugh from the time they make their appearance until they leave the stage. The third act for Sunday is another sister team, "The Darn Sisters" two beautiful girls will try to entertain you with their act called "Dance Oddities" comedy and dancing. The Fox Theatre at all times offers entertainment for the grown-ups as well as for the children to see.

In addition to the splendid stage show you will be entertained by a de luxe screen performance, Robert Montgomery in his first starring picture, "Shipmates." Robert Montgomery makes his bow as a star in the film with Dorothy Jordan as leading lady, which is reason enough to see the picture, even if it lacked the thundering battle practice scenes in which the entire Pacific fleet takes part.

With most of the scenes filmed aboard the U. S. S. Colorado, the picture provides unique and fascinating entertainment as well as a nautical education. An entire navy career parade before you in a dramatic rescue staged on a burning ammunition barge.

Montgomery is perfect in his role of the sailor-hero and so ideally fits into the navy background it is difficult to realize he is not, in fact, a bluejacket, but an actor playing a part. As the admiral's daughter with whom he falls in love, Miss Jordan turns in a charming performance.

A new diet for tuberculosis has been attracting attention in Germany. It aims at limiting the amount of mineral salts and reducing the proportion of sugar and starch-containing foods in the diet, together with the addition of raw foods containing vitamins.

Charlie Chaplin Comes Back

Charlie Chaplin, who will be seen in his latest laugh provoker, "City Lights," which opens tonight at the Appleton theatre and again on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, Virginia Cherrill plays opposite him.

"GREAT MEADOW" PLAYS AT ELITE

Historical Romance of Days of Daniel Boone to Be Shown Here

"The Great Meadow," which will be shown at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday as a talking picture version of the Elizabeth Madox Roberts' best-seller, has been called the finest historical narrative to be written in the last decade.

Charles Brabin, whose last film was the successful "Call of the Wild," was entrusted with the responsibility of re-creating the vivid tale of the intrepid Virginians who followed Daniel Boone over the Wilderness Road into Kentucky in 1775.

From all reports, the unforgettable pioneer characters of the much-discussed novel are made to live again.
Berk Jarvis, leader of the band, is interpreted by John Mack Brown.

fresh from his success in "Billy the Kid."

Diony, the bride, is played by the charming Eleanor Boardman of "Redemption," "She Goes to War" and other film hits. The pioneer mother, Elvira Jarvis, has her recreation in the hands of Lucille La Verne, the internationally famous Widow Cagle of "Sun Up."

Cavin Gordon, Greta Garbo's leading man in "Romance," plays Evan Muir, who marries Diony when Berk fails to return from a hunting expedition. Other featured players include Anita Louise, Guinn Williams, Russell Simpson, Sarah Padden and Helen Jerome Rddy.

The highlights of the story are:
the marriage of Berk and Diony in Virginia; the start of the pioneers for Kentucky; the Indian fight on the way; the final struggle over the peak of the forbidden pass;
the arrival at Fort Harrod; the birth of Diony's baby; the Indian attack on Fort Harrod; the trip of Berk to find the Indian killer of his mother; the receipt of news that Berk has been killed; the marriage of Evan Muir and Diony; the return of Berk.

Mad Pursuit

BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Nicholas Thayer's suicide has left his wife, Nora, a widow with a claim upon his people and their home near Albany. Behind her is an aimless life in Italy with her artist father, Julian Lake. Now she reproaches herself with the thought that, had she married Nicholas for love rather than to escape her own loneliness, she might have prevented his rash act. When she visits her father's supposedly rich relatives in Albany, she finds Aunt Emily living humbly with her daughters, Frances, whose husband has deserted her, and Hallie, a cripple. Happy to see her, Nora had her clothes for her visit next day to Nicholas' people. His brother, Jonathan, cold, contemptuous, takes her to Damon, his step-sister, at the beautiful old Thayer place.

A HOME FOR NORA?
NORA had been so intent on unwrapping the picture that she had not seen the girl who crossed the room to her so quietly. The painting was the Nicholas she wanted to remember, the man who had lived to paint, not the man who had found life futile. As she looked up at Damon, her first impression was of a plain girl with hair folded about a small head. She was dressed in a simple, knotted silk. Pale as she was, almost colorless, the word exquisite suited her.

"It was so kind of you to come," Damon said, sitting down beside her. "I hope Jon explained to you that we wanted to come to you at once. But unfortunately we had some counting staying with us—they are still here," Damon added. Her voice was cool and remote. She seemed to Nora to be living secretly back of her transparent gray eyes. But Damon was studying Nora, with a cool and consummate knowledge that frightened her. "I wish," Damon went on, "you would tell me something."

Nora's mind was in confusion. She had prepared herself for this. But now she saw that every motive would be held up to the light, every word would damn her. She felt instinctively that Damon distrusted her. "I don't know how to tell you!" But there was command in Damon's light eyes. The features that were so delicate were not weak, and the lips, pale as coral, were willful. Under the urgency of that will Nora began. Her own lips were dry. Sometimes she could not go on; but Damon waited until she was able to continue. Once Nora looking at her felt Damon's passion, a barred fire ready to spring out at a word.

When she had ended Damon said, "Nicholas left no money, did he?" But this was his home. It was his intention that you live here, was it not? "But you—do you want me?" Nora cried. "We all want to do what Nicholas would have wished," Damon said. "Nora wanted to cry out to her, 'Oh, like me a little! Why should you distrust me?'" But Damon sat there so still, her narrow folded hands like a nun's, her cool narrow face like a nun's, except for those light eyes that looked at Nora and looked so quickly away, with that strange inner light.

Nora wanted the old home with its tradition and its beauty. She wanted to feel strong and fearless as Damon did, as Jon did, to belong to people who needed her. But neither Damon nor Jon could ever need her. She felt all at once that she and her father must have some chance upon them, that they must wander to the end of their days. Yet it she could break down Damon's distrust.

She reached blindly for the painting of the peasant woman and lifted it so that Damon could see it. "It is all of Nicholas I have left," she said in choked voice.

For minutes Damon stood before it, her face turned away from Nora, intent on the picture. Her shoulders strained forward, her hands clenched. When she turned Nora saw that the blank passion had burned through.

"If you could have saved him, I could forgive you!" Damon said. "Forgive?" Nora repeated. "I don't understand."

"You should have known," you would have seen what he was going to do. He had gambled his life now—and anyone, anything, should have been sacrificed for him." She was breathing painfully. Nora stepped back from her. She was almost afraid of this pale passionate girl. "I want you to come here to live. You must come," Damon cried. "He sent you to us, didn't he? Well then, you cannot refuse to come!"

"But Jon—"

"You will find Jon out there in the garden. He will want to talk to you."

Nora found herself dismissed, walking stiffly through the hall toward the garden. Perhaps she had put a significance on those words that did not belong there. Damon was overwrought and she had flung the first words that came into her mind at Nora. Forgive? Why should Damon forgive her? Had Damon penetrated her secret thought that she had never loved Nicholas? Was it as plainly to be read as that? She stumbled out in the garden and saw Jon moving restlessly about. Nora told him, breathlessly, she thought the old house beautiful.

"My step-father bought up all the land along the river. Foreigners had built their filthy little shacks there, had even built stores. But my step-father had that all torn down. The country's as it used to be now, thank God."

They walked down the sloping lawns to the river. The river lay so still it seemed under an enchantment. On the far banks she could see an old red ice-house, that stood abandoned.

The blue gleam of the railroad tracks, spinning away in the distance, caught her eye. Nora watched a train come around the bend, its trail of smoke black against the sky. In a moment its shrill farewell left them again to silence. It was the blue gleam of the river, the blue gleam of the river, that she stole a glance at Jon and then her eyes took in the beauty of the home and its setting.

"Damon has asked me to come here to live," Nora said at last. Jon was sitting in the deep grass, his arms about his knees, his face turned sharply away. But she could see in the very line of his shoulders that he was strained and angry.

Something forced her to say, "You don't want me, do you?" He turned and looked at her. She had pulled off her beret and her face above the round white collar of Fran's blouse looked soft and childish. His eyes rested on the gray mouth in the fresh pale face. Then he turned away.

"No, I didn't want you to come," he answered brutally. (Copyright, 1931, Jessie Douglas Fox)

Fox River Valley And Winnebago Leagues Open 1931 Season

FORDS INVADE KIMBERLY FOR OPENING TILT

Lefty Behr to hurl for Appleton; Pocan for Papermakers

FOX RIVER VALLEY LEAGUE SUNDAY'S GAMES
Appleton at Kimberly.
Kaukauna at Wisconsin Rapids.
Shawano at Green Bay.

WITH a bit of band playing and flag raising at Wisconsin Rapids, a little extra fanfare are Green Bay and a mere "Play ball" at Kimberly, the 1931 race in the Fox River Valley league will get underway tomorrow afternoon about 2:30.

Marty Lamers and his Kaukauna ball club will feature in the celebration at the Rapids despite the fact that Marty last year managed the lowly Kimberly team and despite the fact the Kaws did not finish near the top. But such is life, and the honors do not always go to the runners up in sport. Appleton, the second place team last fall, will testify.

At Green Bay, the Shawano Indians

"Booze" Bowers who formerly was a fly hawk for the Fords will play Sunday when the Appleton team clashes with Kimberly.

Bowers had a tryout with the Brewers this spring but was not able to win a permanent position on the team. The Brewer management has finally found a place for him and he will leave Monday for McCook, Nebraska, where he will play with the McCook team in the Nebraska State League.

ans will be formally initiated into the league and Joe Cushman and his gang of Green Sox have hopes of making it a merry affair. The initiative taking all the punishment and the initiator having a lot of fun.

At Kimberly where Appleton performed the Papermakers seem to have taken on a business like attitude and they'll dispense with festive and a merry atmosphere in a most business-like manner.

Pocan Managers
The Kimberly nine recently was reorganized and now is under the management of Clarence Pocan whose name is a household word among the Villagers. "Poke" hasn't been with the Papermakers for a year and his absence is best noted by the fact they didn't fare so well last season.

As manager of the club he has surrounded himself with some likely talent and hopes to serve notice on the Appleton team. He has a permanent contender when he gets through with Appleton tomorrow. "Poke" will form part of the hurling corps at Kimberly this season and will take the mound tomorrow afternoon. Personally, this writer feels that Poku need not surround himself with a gaggle of players. A betterly will need to win one run and Mr. Pocan can get that if given half a chance to hit a homer.

However, there'll be a catcher and infielders performing for the Papermakers. The receiver will be Jensen, former Oshkosh and Fond du Lac catcher and may tie up a betterly will need to win one run and Mr. Pocan can get that if given half a chance to hit a homer.

Charley Skell again draws the assignment at first base and as he is a veteran he needs no introduction. Chips Verstegen has been moved to second base by Pocan and the veteran Joe Muench former manager of the Neenah-Menasha valley league team will be at short. The combination of youth and experience should go well.

Powell at Third
Jerry Powell, another former Neenah-Menasha player is assigned to third base for tomorrow but Jerry is a sack of potatoes and may tie up any place. He is a clever infielder and swings a potent war club.

"In the outfield Manager Pocan has posted "Butch" Then, once upon a time a third baseman but now a fast ball hawk and another heavy hitter. "Specs" Kirkhoff, Green Bay, another second baseman, the club and Elmer "Hans" Tangen, last year with Wisconsin Rapids. Tangen is a second baseman by trade but also a good outfielder and last season one of the best lead-off men in the loop. Several utility men also on are the Kimberly staff, and an extra hurler, Lefty "Lefty" Ritten, formerly of the Appleton club, and a southpaw.

Manager Leonard Smith of the Appleton club will present a lineup that will boast no strangers to Valley league fans. Art "Lefty" Behr, the southpaw hurler who burned up the league last season and turned in six wins in seven starts, will be on the mound all primed to begin in 1931 where he left off in 1930. The hurler has been getting in a lot of work since he arrived in Appleton a couple weeks ago and if the weather is half way agreeable he promises to be in almost mid-season form.

Ford Lineup the Same
Leo Murphy, the veteran paddler, will again hold the big mitt and catch Behr's slants. He has acquired a new war club this season and aims to get these base knocks often and early this year. Baldy Eggert will cavort at first base and Sonny "Tornow" will scamper at second and seek to continue his record as the league's Babe Ruth.

George Weisgerber, the only new man on the club is due to start at shortstop. Weisgerber is another of the Neenah-Menasha team players who has signed with other valley club clubs. He is a sure fielder and a hitter. Cully Schultz is expected back at his old post at the red light station, third base.

In the garden Manager Smith has indicated he will start himself, Arne Hillman, Dats Grove or Van Wyck. Van returns to Appleton after a year's absence during which time he worked for Kaukauna. Grove will also be the relief twirler for the Fords.

Calling the Strikes

New York — (CPA)— "We had a chance to win last year," said Walter Johnson, just before the Washington club started the baseball season. Maybe we would have won if we hadn't had such lowdown luck, with so many players injured. But I guess we'll be better off in 1931.

Has Sir Walter lost his horse-shoe again, or is it only missing for the moment? Joe Judge has joined the appendicitis club, Heinie Manush is out and Ossie Bluege is out. What a rap for a splendid chap! But Sir Walter is just as hopeful, just a bland, just as philosophical as ever, and just as fine to his fellow men. Let's hope the horse-shoe has merely been mislaid.

TWIN BILLS PILE UP IN ASSOCIATION
Three More Postponements Yesterday Because of Rain and Cold

Chicago — (AP)—Figuring on when to play doubleheaders made necessary by unfavorable weather, is the biggest item of business in American association offices.

Three more postponements yesterday left clubowners with aching heads while the players looked forward with no pleasure to double bills to clear up the schedule.

In the only contest yesterday, Phil Hensick, a recruit right-hander working for Minneapolis, held Toledo to three singles, while the Millers hammered out a 12 to 2 victory. An error in the seventh by Frank Emmer spoiled a shutout for the Millers.

Youngster, Minneapolis slammed Rabb and Bachman for 15 hits, of which two were home runs by Hargrave. The Miller catcher also socked out a double, and Norris got a homer.

SPORT CLUB SOCCER TEAM MEETS CHAIRS
Appleton Sport club soccer team will again take the field Sunday and will travel to Sheboygan for a game with Sheboygan Bavarians. The usual squad of players will make up the team. Last Sunday the Appleton team defeated Oshkosh in a well played game at the club grounds. W. Spencer and S. Outagamie-st.

A few weeks ago the Appleton club was defeated by the Bavarians, the score being 7 and 1. The team expects to beat the Chairmakers this trip.

ATHLETICS TO AGAIN PLAY HERE SUNDAY; PAULS MEET DE PERE

"Lefty" Kranzusch vs. "Stoney" Vandersteen at Interlake Park

	W	L
Appleton	1	0
Little Chute	1	0
Neenah	0	1
Menasha	0	1
Green Bay	0	0
DePere	0	0

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Little Chute at Appleton.
DePere at Menasha.
Green Bay at Neenah.

THE two new members of the Little Fox River valley league, Green Bay's Haanen Drugs and the DePere Motors, open their league schedule Sunday when they clash with Neenah and Menasha both defeated in openers last Sunday. DePere and the Bays did not play league games but the latter an 11 inning battle to Gillett of the Cloverland loop. Neenah will play most to the Drugs while Menasha will entertain the Motors. Both open home schedules on May 17.

An important game will take place at Interlake park when the league's two southpaw aces, "Lefty" Kranzusch of Appleton and "Stoney" Vandersteen of Little Chute clash. Kranzusch's hurling plus heavy side work by his mates enabled Appleton to wallop the Menasha Dagles 11-4 in the opener. The Chutes whipped Fahrknugr, Neenah's ace 9-8 so that two of the loop's strongest early season squads will meet to see which will take its first hitting.

Little is known of the strength of the DePere and Bay nines, but both will be meeting tough opposition on the evening's home fields. Green Bay's battle with Gillett and its list of former amateur stars, including several old junior legion and high school athletes, indicates Neenah will not every bit of Fahrknugr's mound skill. The Bays have 24 players, including three excellent twirlers.

The Motors split with the Drugs in two games last year and have Vellerman, former DePere Little Fox mound ace again in the fold. Menasha strengthened its team since last week.

DePere was admitted to the league at the final regular meeting Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. A final discussion of league regulations, the schedule and "knotty" problems closed the session.

Mayor George Sande will throw the first ball at Neenah's opener with Green Bay Sunday. Manager John Ciske announced. Green Bay also announced plans for a gala opening at the Bay city on May 17 when the Appleton nine furnish the opposition.

BUCKY LAWLESS BEATS THOMPSON

King Levinsky Mauls Emmet Rocco, Dubinsky Downs Grogan

Chicago — (AP)—Young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Cal., Negro, still is the welterweight champion of the world, but he has yet to defeat Bucky Lawless of Auburn, N. Y.

Thompson last night dropped a 10-round decision to the rough easterner in the final bout of the Chicago Stadium's first "83 top" show, his second defeat by Lawless. The first one occurred before Thompson won the title from Jackie Fields more than a year ago. Thompson's title was not on the block, however, as he had forced Lawless to come in over the limit.

The verdict was popular with the crowd of 11,340, but was somewhat of a surprise to ringside experts who figured the sharp-punching Negro had gained a distinct edge in seven of the 10 rounds. Lawless weighed 148 and Thompson 147 pounds.

Levin's winner for revenge were more successful for a bout with Chicago boxers, King Levinsky, the swinging westsider, and Harry Dubinsky, a promising young lightweight.

Levin's outmauled Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City, Pa., heavyweight in another 10-rounder, to wipe out a defeat administered him a week ago. Dubinsky employed a more accurate straight left to defeat Tommy Grogan of Omaha, Neb., in 8 rounds, to square up for a decision victory previously won by Grogan. In the opening eight-rounder, Danny Delmont outgassed Davey Abad of Panama, to gain the decision.

Unfavorable weather held the crowd below expectations in spite of the sharp downward revision in prices. The gross gate was $21,380.

YESTERDAY'S STARS
Wiley Moore, Red Sox—Went in as relief pitcher and checked Indians with five hits in 8 2/3 innings as Red Sox won, 8-4.

Johnny Roderick, Robins—Doubled with bases filled in fourth inning to drive in three runs and aid in defeat of Phils.

Bill Akers, Tigers—Doubled in tenth to drive in Owen with run that beat Senators, 3-2.

New York — (Kid) Berg, England, outpointed Tony Herrera, El Paso, Tex., (10).

BY JOHNNY FARRELL
(Former Amateur Open Champion)
As Told to Alan Gould
NO. 10 TAKE THE PENALTY.
It isn't well known already, it should be fairly obvious that you can't win in golf with sixes and sevens.

I know you will remind me that Bobby Jones tied for the open championship at Winged Foot in 1929 despite two sevens on his card for the last round, but he was lucky enough to sink a 12 foot putt on the last hole to gain that tie.

However, since Jones is always the exception when golf is being discussed, I guess this proves the rule. I have studied the cards of many big tournaments, and I find that the fellow who wins usually has played safe, refusing to run the risks that many mean a six or a seven.

I confess I have lost a half dozen important tournaments in my career by taking chances, doing foolish things that I can go back and pick out later as the cause of a fatal extra stroke or two.

Tommy Kerrigan, my first teacher, would have won many a big tournament or championship but for his unwillingness to take the penalty for a poor shot. Trying instead to make up his mistake only to set into more difficulty.

So invidious the average tournament player I say:
"Play safe when you are in a tough spot. Don't take the long chances that you hope will mean a miraculous three or four but which usually mean a sloppy six or seven. Be content with the five. You can win with fives, but you can't win with sixes and sevens."

Nag Throw Red?

News dispatches a few days ago said a horse tossed Red Dunn of Marquette and Green Bay Packer fame and injured the grider so he might not play again. Red doesn't believe the story and in a letter to Dr. W. W. Kelly, Green Bay, former Packer president Red explains the incident.

"Frank J. Murray of Marquette called today to tell me you called him in regard to that article in the paper about me getting hurt. Well I want to take this time to tell you that it is nothing but a "Wooden" joke. We have a few boys here in Milwaukee who have a wonderful sense of humor when it comes to a joke.

"I certainly had a great time explaining why I was not in the hospital when I came down to work yesterday.

A few of my so-called friends had a little too much beer Sunday and called the Milwaukee Sentinel and they fell for the story.

"Not that it means anything as far as Green Bay is concerned, but I would like you to inform my friends there about this false and cheap advertising. I might let the Chicago Bears hurt my shoulder, but I would never permit some d— old nag to throw me and get hurt. Thinking for your interest in my health, I am.

Four Old Friends
RED DUNN
(Get That Old)

Zep Traurig, Manitowoc, took a trimming the other night at Sheboygan but says he had a bad arm and hand. Julius Cohen, Milwaukee, beat the lake short youth. We're willing to believe Zep's story—he has never alibied before and always given his best. And we saw him take a trimming from Max Maker a month ago, too.

Manitowoc may go in for the amateur sport next season. Interest in the simon pures is hot around Manitowoc and Two Rivers and with clubmen making a go of it Manitowoc will foster the sport soon. Wait and see.

H. Strutz and F. Felt, Appleton duo are in third place in doubles at the eighth annual Fox River valley club and in doubles at the Manitowoc club, Green Bay. They have a total of 1219. An Escanaba duo leads with 1281.

Jack Mathews, assistant pro at Butte des Morts, isn't in midseason form and he admits it. The other day Jake had a day out and like the w. k. postman he played a round of golf and took an 84 for his troubles.

Tom Daly, Milwaukee, Jim McKenny and Dan Steinberg, Jr., were the other players. McKenny got an 83 and Steinberg an 85, so the story goes.

BADGERS BEATEN BY MICHIGAN NINE, 10-6
Madison — (AP)—The University of Michigan yesterday put the University of Wisconsin's Big Ten baseball championship.

In a free hitting, erratic game, the Wolves defeated the Badgers, 10 to 6. The Michigan team collected 12 hits and the Badgers 11. Diffey, Michigan outfielder, got circuitous. Wisconsin has lost two of three conference games and the Wolves victory kept them in second place with three wins and one defeat. A heavy diamond made fielding difficult and the game was filled with errors.

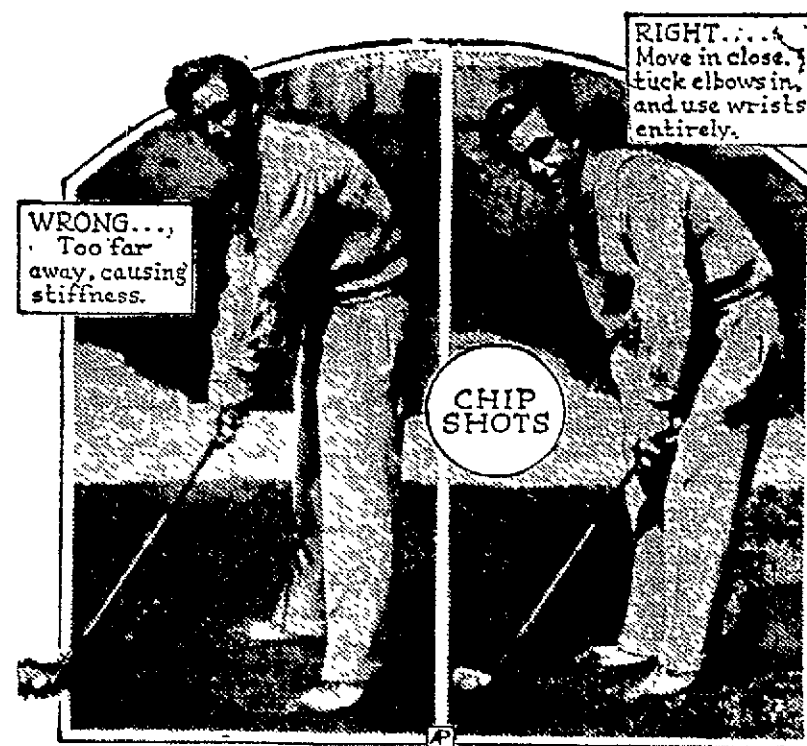

Michigan got two runs in the first inning when Plankey dropped a pop fly and later dropped a throw at first. Jack Tompkins scored the pair.

MORTON KAER, U. S. C., SIGNED BY GIANT "11"
New York — (AP)—Morton Kaer, an American halfback at Southern California in 1926, has been signed by the New York Giants professional football team as field captain.

Kaer will take the place of Benny Friedman, who has retired from professional play to coach the Yale backfield and trade in stocks on the New York curb exchange.

MARTY BRILL SIGNED TO COACH COLUMBIA U.
New York — (AP)—Columbia university yesterday announced the signing of Martin (Marty) Brill, Notre Dame halfback during 1922 and 1923, as an assistant football coach. Brill will assist Herb Kopf, backfield and end coach, in training the blue and white backs.

Johnny Farrell on GOLF

The average golfer if slicing or hitting with the heel of the club in short iron play instinctively moves back, illustrated by Johnny Farrell (left). Contrast awkwardness of position with correct form shown by Farrell on right.

I should say probably 99 per cent of the players have the fault of not playing safe. If they stopped to analyze their results back over no more than a half dozen rounds, they would find it was just common sense to do these things:
1. Play OUT of the woods instead of through them.
2. Go for the green instead of the pin on most approach shots, especially if the cup is located on a projection of beyond a trap.
3. Use the right club in a bunker, remembering that the first objective is to get out.

Monday—Match Play Easier

CLEVELAND LOSES HURLING SERVICES OF WESLEY FERRELL

Star Pitcher Retired in First Inning Yesterday With Sore Arm

THE Cleveland Indians, leaders themselves in a rather tough spot as they open their stand against the strong eastern clubs. The Indians not only have to face opposition which looks somewhat stronger than what they have met, but they may have to meet it without the services of Wesley Ferrell, king-pin of their pitching staff.

Ferrell started against the Sox yesterday and retired in the first inning after giving three doubles. He complained of a sore arm. If Ferrell remains out long, Cleveland has only Willis Huddlin who has proved reliable so far. Brown and Harder have started regularly but seldom have finished their games. As for relief hurlers, it took three of them to stop the Red Sox yesterday and they did not succeed until Boston had put over five runs in the fourth inning to win 8 to 4.

Detroit Beats Nats
The other game which escaped the weather in the American league yesterday created a slight disturbance in the theory that the balance of power in the circuit lies in the east. The Detroit Tigers outlasted Washington in a ten inning mound duel between Earl Whitehill and Lloyd Brown to win 3 to 2.

In the National league, two games were scheduled to wind up the intrasectional struggles before the western teams open in the east today and one was washed out. The Brooklyn Dodgers won the other, making very good use of four hits and eight walks off Stewart Bolen to beat the Phillies 4 to 3. Bolen, making his first National league start after being laid up with a hurt shoulder, was wild just when it was costly. A triple and two walks in the fourth inning filled the bases and Jimmy Frederick crashed a double off the fence to bring in three runs. Hits by Herman and O'Doul made it 4-0 in the sixth before the Phillies got a run off Joe Shauts. The Robin hurler lead to give way to Jack Quinn in the ninth when the Phils got their third run but got credit for his third victory over the Quakers this year.

JACKIE BERG WINS FROM TONY HERRERA
New York — (AP)—Jack (Kid) Berg, leather-slinging lightweight from England, has taken the first step in the come-back campaign he hopes will lead to another "shot" at champion Tony Canzoneri.

Knocked out by Canzoneri in a recent titular battle at Chicago, Berg returned to the ring in Madison Square Garden last night and whipped young Tony Herrera, El Paso Mexican, in a ten round bout before little more than 8,000 spectators.

Although Berg's margin of victory was decisive, the crowd booted the decision and gave Herrera an ovation. Berg piled into the Mexican all the way, shooting punches from all angles. They weren't damaging punches but they served to keep Herrera on the defensive. The Mexican landed the cleaner and harder blows but there weren't enough to earn him more than one round or two. Berg weighed 137½; Herrera 135½.

PREP GOLFERS WILL MEET AT OCONOMOWOC
Oconomowoc — (AP)—Announcement has been made that the annual high school state golf tournament will be played on the Lac La Pile course here June 5 and 6. Two nine hole qualifying rounds will be played the fifth. It is chiefly a practice round and no player will be eliminated. First and second team trophies will be given six individual prizes. Superintendent of schools, E. F. Rosenthal will supervise the tourney.

EIGHT TEAMS SIGNED FOR AMERICAN LEAGUE

An eighth team to compete in the American softball league has been announced by Hilbert Weller, president of the loop. The new club is a combination of Valley Iron-Riverside Paper talent and will play its first game Monday afternoon at the Chair company team. The new club takes the place of the Fox Theatre team.

Play in the fraternal league last night saw the Junior Chamber of Commerce mail the Moose club by a score of 22 and 3. The game was called in the fifth inning because of rain. The J. C. C.'s counted 21 hits and the Moose four. Jennerjohn and Williamsen worked for the winners and Stark and Williamsen for the losers.

National league game featuring the Atlas Mill team and the Pure Milks saw the former win by a lopsided score of twenty something to nothing. The boys lost track of the score in the early innings.

Tustin is given the edge in the game with New London if Alberts, star hurler is in form. Shiocton's surprise win last week brands the club as mighty strong and a battle will be staged when the team meets Weyauwega at Weyauwega.

COTTER WINS TWICE FROM HUNDERTMARK

Leo Champeau Gets Trimming; Billy Schuller, Kaukauna, Wins

Harold Cotter, Kaukauna welterweight, won two fights from Billy Hundertmark, Green Bay, last night in the windup card of the amateur season at the Bay. In the first round Cotter knocked Hundertmark down and Billy, dazed, started up only to drop again before being hit. The trick automatically disqualified him but after talking it over Cotter agreed to continue.

The fight that followed was a vicious affair with both men cutting each other's face. In the third Cotter was clipped on the button and went down for a nine count. The judges called the bout a draw at the end of three rounds and the boys went into the fourth after which Cotter was given the nod. Hundertmark had both eyes closed and Cotter one.

Champeau, Green Bay, a merry trouncing in three rounds. Art Van Eas landed a right hand wallop on the jaw of Eddie Hornig, New London, and won in the first; Don De Laire, Green Bay, beat Johnny K. N. up, Sheboygan, in three; Herman Weinstein, Sheboygan, beat Marcel Leclercq, Green Bay, in a great fight; and Billy Schuller, Kaukauna, beat Leo Hirshman, Denmark, in three.

Leo Schuller of Berlin viewed the season thus: "With some new material and a little more support of the home fans this season we should make a strong bid for the pennant this season."

J. C. Bennett of Redgranite, with a club which may surprise more than one before the season is over, said: "We have a catcher which has played together for several seasons and with Schultz, former White Sox pitcher, I cannot see why we will not be pennant contenders."

The Menasha manager said, "Being the only baseball team in Menasha, the Falcons expect to be in for a banner year. With Shawano Zenefick doing the hurling we will be in the thick of the pennant fight."

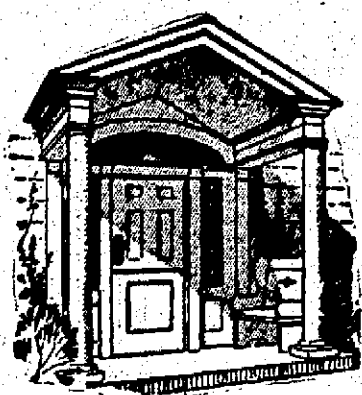

"Although Omro has a purely home talent club with the exception of the battery, we expect to be in the running from the start," Charles Fowler declared.

BILL HUNNEFIELD IS BENCHED BY INDIANS
Cleveland — (AP)— Hoping to stem the ragged play of the league-leading Cleveland Indians in their last several games, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh announced shortstop Bill Hunnefield would be benched today in favor of Jonah Goldman, last year's regular shortstop. Hunnefield has made 14 errors in 20 games and his failure to hit has been a disappointment.

It was also possible that the slugger Eddie Morgan, who lost his first base job to Lev Fonseca, would be sent to third, replacing Burnett.

A ROOFING job will increase the value of your home. Right now it can be done more cheaply than ever before. Materials and labor will cost you much less.

Many homes would be benefitted by modernized PLUMBING, right now you can obtain fixtures much lowered in price. You'll find willing and competent labor available.

Whether you, as a home owner or a prospective home owner, look at this building and remodeling situation selfishly or generously, one fact stands out: NOW IS THE TIME TO BUILD, REMODEL OR REPAIR

Undoubtedly there is work which could be done on your home. If you are planning to build, you will be interested to know that right now you can build a better house for less money than you could a year or more ago or will be able to build next year

Building costs, official estimates show, are lower than they have been anytime during the past sixteen years. The price of materials and equipment is at a particularly low level. Labor, because of the great supply, will work more efficiently

The typical, hard-working American laboring man wants a job and will work hard to keep it. By building now, you assure yourself of whole-hearted work from the men who construct your building. This delay is eliminated, time shortened and money saved

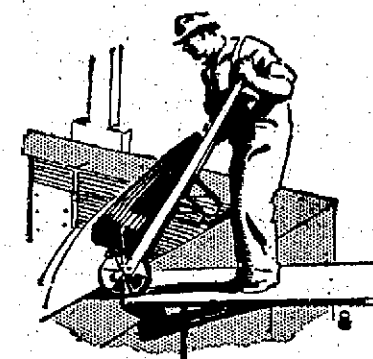

Appleton is far from being overbuilt. Its average of vacant homes is 1%. The national average is 3%. Moreover, Appleton has increased in population nearly six hundred persons each year for the past ten years. (1920-1930). This means that nearly one hundred and twenty new homes are needed in the city each year, estimating five persons to a family.

Wise builders are acting now. They realize that in a short time, increased demand will force the price of materials upwards. They are buying and building now, knowing that in a few years, their property will have INCREASED in value.

Think it over seriously. Whether your problem is small or large, by settling it now you will save money and assure yourself of a better building or remodeling job.

PLASTERING should not be delayed where it is needed. By calling on a competent plasterer, you can assure yourself that the job will be done with the best materials priced exceptionally low.

By putting willing men to work, you not only save money on labor and materials, but you improve business conditions generally. You do both yourself and the community a favor when you build.
